Introduction

Whatever the condition of affairs may be in this world of ours, "records are records," and they are an annual part of athletics which are as much essential to the history of the sports that they represent as the performers. The pride of individual and team competition rests not alone in the mere act of winning. There is always the further incentive to do better than history records as having been done before. Figures are dry reading, but were it not for the figures there would be little use for the words, as after all at least fifty per cent of the existence which we have is made up of bookkeeping. We cannot very well get along without it in anything. The earliest "records" which are noted by man have not forgotten that there is an essential necessity for correct and accurate "figures."

Little by little the BASE BALL RECORD is approaching accuracy. When it was first compiled there were "records" in existence that afterwards proved to be not "records." Some fables were eliminated from the bookkeeping and placed in the romance, where they properly belonged. It was a tedious task and by no means an easy one. To be very frank, there are those who refuse to concede certain points even now, in spite of personal testimony to the contrary, which merely goes to show how strongly we are wedded to our athletic idols. Much has been done to make the BASE BALL RECORD better than it was at the beginning. Perfect accuracy could hardly have been anticipated in the earlier editions, and perhaps that is the very best reason for the existence of the BASE BALL RECORD, as it is quite probable that without its publication we should have gone on and on for another century and accepted what purported to be truths but which were far removed from that standard.

The year that is past resulted in the temporary cessation of the activities of some of the minor leagues. There is nothing very astonishing in that fact. Minor leagues are usually operated more through the medium of local pride than because of any financial reimbursement to the promoters. As often as this statement has been made there have been writers who have declined to accept it. It is useless to quarrel with them, because there are those who cannot be convinced except they are actually permitted to try for themselves. Nothing better can be suggested as a medium to convince them than to suggest that they pool their issues and try to operate a minor league during any year when there is more than local history being manufactured. For that matter, try to operate one in any year. It is the experience of Base Ball that they will be convinced.

The publishers and the Editor of the RECORD are very thankful to those who have so kindly assisted in the many ways in which they could, to make this edition a success. Speaking in figures it contains the vital points of a Base Ball year and that is the reason why so much effort is undertaken upon it. Looking back is one of the most pleasurable of all Base Ball experiences and it is perhaps but fair to say that if there had been more looking back there would be fewer rash statements.

We still live in a progressive age, if there do happen to be among us those who are ready to mount the hill, that they may see the end of the world coming above the horizon.

JOHN B. FOSTER,

Editor Spalding's Base Ball Record and Spalding's Base Ball Guide.

HON. JOHN K. TENER,
Ex-Governor of Pennsylvania.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PLAYERS IN THE SPALDING BASE BALL HALL OF FAME.

The Spalding Base Ball Hall of Fame

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Few who were in the National League Hall of Fame in 1916 have survived to hold a place of honor in 1917. The greatest upset of all has been in the race for the batting championship. A comparative newcomer—for that matter only with two years' experience in the National League—earned the title of best batter over players, some of whom had been connected with the parent organization of Base Ball for a decade, and three or four of whom at various times had been keen contenders in the battle for supremacy. Oddly enough, the runnerup for batting honors was another untried youngster, who completed his second year in the National League.

The batting champion was Ed F. Roush of the Cincinnati club, who had been procured from the Federal League in 1916 by New York and who was transferred to the Cincinnati club in the trade of players involving Herzog. Roush played in only 136 games, as against 145 for Hornsby, and batted with a percentage of .341, as against .327 for the St. Louis player. The fact that Roush was out of the diamond for eighteen games may, or may not, have affected his batting percentage. That is a matter of pure guesswork, and he certainly played in enough games to entitle him to the batting championship of his organization. The greatest number of games in which any one player took part with a high batting average was Groh of Cincinnati, who played in 156 games and batted for .304, while Kauff of New York played in 153 games and batted for .308. Roush is a natural, easy, left hand batter, who combines ability to hit out with expertness in bunting. He is a very fast runner, and that helps him in close calls at first base.

For the second time Robertson of New York divided the honor of making the most home runs during the season in the National League. In 1916 he was tied with Williams of Chicago. The latter did not have as good a year as his preceding season and lost many points in his batting. In 1917 Robertson tied with Cravath of Philadelphia, each of them making 12 home runs, which was the mark set by Robertson and Williams in 1916. Strangely enough, both of Robertson's rivals in the years named were batting over shorter fences than define the limits of the Polo Grounds. Chicago's right field barrier was easy until a wire netting was raised, which has decreased the number of right field home runs made in that city. The Philadelphia fences stand just as they have for years and just as they are likely to stand for years to come, in view of the fact that they are merely the walls which separate the street from the playing ground. Among Robertson's feats of 1917 was that of batting a home run into the right field bleachers of the Polo Grounds, the second longest hit by measurement ever made on that field. The longest distance hit within the enclosure is to the credit of Pipp of the New York American League club. A batted ball hit by him struck the right field bleachers a few feet nearer center field than the point of contact of Robertson's hit. As the bleachers at that point curve with center field, the maximum point of circumference, it is obvious that Pipp's hit was farther out than Robertson's. Cravath was the leading home run hitter in 1915.

The leading three-base batter in 1917 was Hornsby, the ambitious youngster in St. Louis. He supplanted Hinchman of Pittsburgh, who held that honor in the year before. Hornsby is perhaps the youngest player to have led the National League in three-base hits with so little experience. The leader in two-base hits in 1917 is Groh of Cincinnati. It is the first time that Groh has stepped into the front as a specialist in long distance hits. Last year Niehoff of Philadelphia was the best two-base hitter in the league, and Doyle, formerly of New York, held the lead more than once because of his speed in getting to first base and his ability to turn first base and save ground at the same time. It is also worthy of mention that Groh made more hits, including all kinds, than any batter in the league. His total of hits was 182, as compared to 180 for Burns of New York, who ran second. In base-hits alone—singles—Roush and Kauff of New York are tied. Each of them had 141.

The leading sacrifice hitter of the league was Deal of Chicago. He had but 29 such hits to his credit, showing conclusively how little the sacrifice hit game was used by National League clubs during the season. Second to him in this respect were Stock and Whitted of Philadelphia, each of whom had 28. Collectively, the Chicago club made more sacrifice hits than any other National League team. This, of course, including sacrifice flies as well as bunts. The leading sacrifice hitter in 1916 was Flack of Chicago, and for two years in succession the Cubs hold that honor. The falling off of sacrifice hits in 1917 seems to be a confirmation of the opinion advanced last year that little by little the sacrifice hit game is being modified from the extreme to which it had been carried prior to 1915.

Carey of Pittsburgh led the league in stolen bases in 1917 with 46. He held the same honor in 1916 and in 1915, and is perhaps the only player in the National League who has repeated three times in a Hall of Fame mention. The second base-stealer was Burns of New York, with 40 stolen bases, and the third Kauff, with 30.

The player who made the most runs in 1917 was Burns of New York, and he did the same thing in 1916. His total of runs in 1917 was 103. In 1916 he made 105. The champion New York team scored the most runs, with a total of 635, and stole the most bases, with a total of 162. They also made the most single hits, running up a total of 1,080.

As is usually the case, Miller of St. Louis figures in any mention that may be made of the good work done by first basemen. As a matter of fact he leads the league. In 46 games he has a percentage of .998. In 129 games, however, Konetchy has a percentage of .994, and justice entitles him to first position because of the greater number of games played. More than that, some of Miller's games were not played out at first base, as he shifted to another position. Mollwitz of Pittsburgh, who came into the league late, had a percentage of .994, and so did Covington of Boston. Daubert led in 1916.

At second base Rawlings of Boston is unquestionably the leader, with a fielding average of .977 in 96 games. Zeider of Chicago had the same percentage, but he played in only 24 games at second base and also filled in at shortstop and third base. No second baseman in the National League played anything like the full limit of games, and for that reason, as much as any other, Rawlings is entitled to whatever honor goes with what may be termed an unsuccessful second base season. The veteran of the year was Evers, who played 73 games, both with Boston and Philadelphia, with a fielding percentage of .973. Louden was first last year.

Groh holds the lead at third base without any question. He played 154 games for Cincinnati, with 527 chances and a fielding percentage of .966. The first in the league, as far as total chances are concerned, is Baird of St. Louis, with 530, but his percentage was very much lower, .940. The leader in 1916 was Mowrey.

The National League champions have the leading shortstop for 1917. In 151 games Fletcher had a fielding average of .956, running ahead of Maranville, who was first in 1916. There has always been considerable rivalry between the two, and last season Fletcher not only played in more games than the Boston player but had more chances; in fact, more chances than any other shortstop in the National League. He had 565 assists, as against 527 for Hornsby, who was next, showing the greater facility on the part of Fletcher in covering ground. Each assist, of course, represents a throw.

For the first time Paskert of Philadelphia is the leading outfielder, with an average of .984 in 138 games. The next best outfielder is Myers of Brooklyn, with an average of .982. He played in only 66 games in the outfield, being called upon to substitute in the infield. The leading outfielder in 1916 was Flack of Chicago. The best of the champion New York outfielders was Kauff, which will surprise a great many Base Ball enthusiasts who were firm in the belief that Burns would finish with a higher average. Kauff's average was .976, as opposed to .974 for Burns.

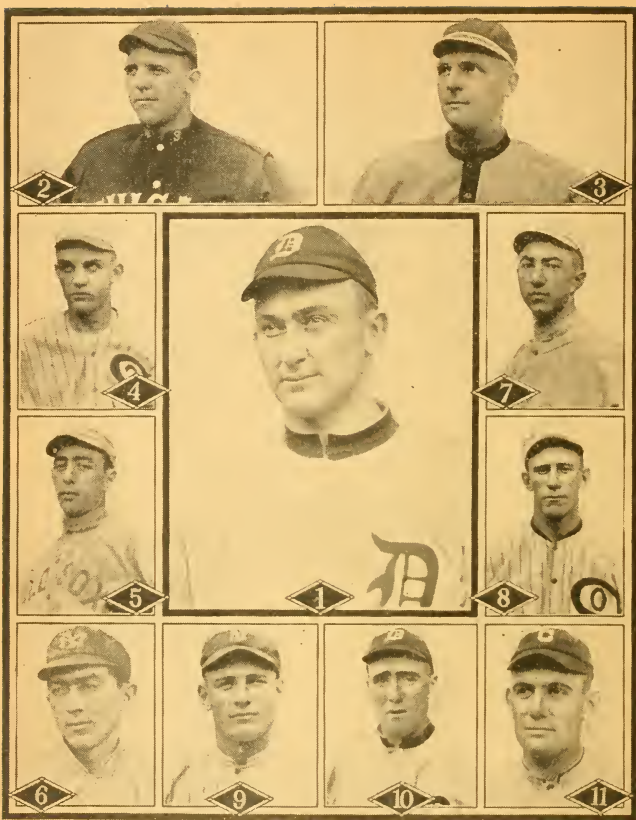

The leading catcher of the National League, based on the foundation of 50 games played, is Killifer of Philadelphia, who played in 120 games, with a percentage of .984. Meyers of Brooklyn and Boston tied with him in 68 games. The player who leads the league in actual percentage is Adams of Philadelphia, with .994. The work of catching was so much split up last year that it seems advisable to give the honor to Killifer, who did more real work than any catcher in the National League.

Eight pitchers of the National League did not have a fielding error, giving them an average of 1.000 percentage each. These pitchers were Rixey, Philadelphia; Demaree, Chicago and New York; Packard, Chicago and St. Louis; Eller, Cincinnati; Sallee, New York; Ring, Cincinnati; Fittery, Philadelphia, and May, St. Louis.

On the basis of earned runs per game, Alexander of Philadelphia defeated all his rivals in 1917. Schupp, the sensational young pitcher of the New York club, who led the league in 1916, perhaps would have earned the same honor again in 1917 had it not been for the fact that in two games which he lost, and both of which he did not pitch in full, he was batted so hard that the total of earned runs put him out of the running for league leader. However, on the basis of games won and lost, he is the leading pitcher for 1917, so that he lost one distinction only to gain another. Second to Alexander in the National League for 1917, something which very likely surprised all except those who kept statistics, was the fact that Perritt of New York was the second ranking pitcher of the organization. With Schupp third, New York stood very high, so far as standard pitching was concerned, because it is conceded that the real test of all pitching must be based on the actual work of the pitchers themselves. It is based on that when their records are computed strictly on the earned run plan.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

After relinquishing the batting championship of the American League for one year, Cobb of Detroit regained the honor in 1917 and not only won that distinction but pretty much everything else in the American League that had to do with batting or with making runs. His principal rivals in 1917 for batting honors were Sisler of St. Louis and Speaker of Cleveland. It was Speaker who took the championship away from Cobb in 1916. Neither Speaker nor Sisler played in as many games in 1917 as Cobb. That fact, however,

1, T. R. Cobb, Detroit, leading batsman; also leader in single base hits, two-base hits, three-base hits, most hits and stolen bases. 2, E. V. Cicotte, Chicago, lowest average of runs earned off pitchers. 3, J. P. Henry, Washington, leading catcher. 4, C. A. Gandil, Chicago, leading first baseman. 5, J. J. Barry, Boston, leading second baseman. 6, J. F. Baker, New York, leading third baseman. 7, E. Scott, Boston, leading shortstop. 8, J. F. Collins, Chicago, leading outfielder. 9, W. C. Pipp, New York, leader in home runs. 10, O. Bush, Detroit, leader in most runs. 11, R. Chapman, Cleveland, leader in sacrifice hits.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PLAYERS IN THE SPALDING BASE BALL

would have little or no bearing on Cobb's achievement, as his percentage ran so much higher in proportion to the chances involved there is little possibility that he could have been overtaken. So often has Cobb accomplished this feat of making more base hits and leading his league in batting, that it is small wonder his name stands for pretty much all that is classified with success in American League circles. It has been asserted that favoritism has been extended to Cobb, but if there is any one reason better than another to decry such assertion it is the fact that year after year Cobb continues to finish his Base Ball season with pretty much the same result. No player except one of high quality could do this four or five years out of seven. Cobb has done it every year except one since 1907.

Not only did Cobb win the batting championship of the American League for the year just past, but he also made more single base hits than any other player in that circuit. His total of singles is 151 out of a total of 225 base hits. He also led the league in making three-base hits, with 23 to his credit against 17 for Jackson. Not satisfied with that, he led his league in making two-base hits, with 44 as his total against 42 that were made by Speaker of the Cleveland club. Still another honor was gained when he stole the most bases of any player in the American League, having a total of 55 against 53 for E. Collins of Chicago, 52 for Chapman of Cleveland, and 51 for Roth, also of Cleveland. There were four players in the American League who stole more than 50 bases, while the best base-stealer in the National League was Carey of Pittsburgh, with only 46. Either there is better base-running in the American League or catching of an inferior quality to that of the National League. The reader may take his choice.

In one achievement Cobb did not hold up to his reputation of 1916. In that year he made the most runs of any player in his league, but in 1917 he lost this honor to Bush, shortstop of his own club. Bush had a total of 112 runs against 107 for Cobb.

The best home run batter in the American League was Pipp of New York. His total was 9. No player in the American League reached double figures as did players in the National League. The best sacrifice hitter in the American League was Chapman of Cleveland, who had a much greater total than the best sacrifice hitter of the National League. In fact, his total was practically double that of Deal of Chicago, who led in the older organization. It will be noted that four players in the American League shared all the batting and running honors.

With two exceptions, every fielding honor in the American League was reversed over the record of 1916. In that year the best first baseman was Gandil. In 1917 he retained that distinction by playing up to the form displayed in the season preceding. There was only one player who led him, Leonard of Washington. The latter had a percentage of 1.000, but he played in only twenty games, which were too few for a record. Gandil had a close rival in McInnis of Philadelphia, who played in 150 games, as against 149 for Gandil, with a fielding average of .993 as against .995 for Gandil. It will be noted, therefore, that Gandil did not have an easy task to retain the distinction of being the leading first baseman.

Gedeon of New York and Turner of Cleveland both led Barry of Boston in fielding averages, but neither of them played in enough games to be entitled to a record. For that reason Barry, in 116 games, with a percentage of .973, should go into history as the leading second baseman of the American League for 1917. He just overtops E. Collins of Chicago, who played in 156 games with an average of .969.

There are two third basemen in the American League with fielding averages higher than that of Baker of New York. One of them is Magee, with a perfect record in twenty games, and the other is Turner of Cleveland, with a fielding record of .980 in forty games. Baker played in 146 games with a percentage of .949, and Weaver of Chicago tied him in percentage in 107 games. However, as Baker played in 39 more games at third base than his nearest rival, there seems to be no reason why he should not hold the honor for 1917 as opposed to Weaver.

Owing to injury, Weaver played but ten games at shortstop for Chicago. His percentage was .983. Scott of Boston played in 157 games, with a fielding average of .953, and easily retained the distinction that was his the previous year. McBride of Washington, who for many years was the American League's leading shortstop, finished third, but played in only 41 games.

The best catcher according to the fielding records was Henry of Washington, with a percentage of .988 in 59 games. Thomas of Boston ran second, with .986 in 77 games, while Schalk of Chicago, who caught in 139 games, more than any other catcher in the American League, had a fielding percentage of .981.

On the basis of fifty games played, the leading outfielder of the American League is John Collins of Chicago, who played in 73 games with a percentage of .992. Jacobson of St. Louis played in 141 games, with a percentage of .988, and Strunk of Philadelphia played in 146 games, with a percentage of .986. High of New York also had a percentage of .986, but he played in only 100 games.

The greatest number of assists made by any one outfielder was 32. This distinction belonged to Bodie of Philadelphia.

Four pitchers in the American League did not make a fielding error. These were Johnson, Washington; Hamilton, St. Louis; Schauer, Philadelphia, and Mogridge, New York. Johnson is entitled to the honor of being considered the leader, as he played in 48 games against 33 for Schauer, 29 for Mogridge and 27 for Hamilton.

The leading pitcher in the American League, on the basis of earned runs, was Cicotte of Chicago. He took part in 49 games, with an average of 1.53 earned runs per game. It was generally considered during the season that he was doing the best work of any pitcher in the American League and the records as made up seem to prove that such was the case. Mays of Boston pitched in 35 games, with a record of 1.75, and the veteran Plank of St. Louis finished third with an average of 1.79. Scott, Faber and Russell of Chicago ranked fifth, sixth and seventh among the pitchers. It would seem that their good standing, added to the excellent record made by Cicotte, proves pretty conclusively that the Chicago club had a high class pitching staff. Of course, this is only another bit of evidence to show that the championship of the American League was won by a team which qualified well in all its departments. Cleveland had two pitchers among the first eight, in that respect surpassing every other club in the league except Chicago, St. Louis and Boston. It is, therefore, not difficult to see why Cleveland was a winning combination throughout the season.

No attempt will be made to describe at length any of the six games which were necessary to bring about the conclusion of the world series. A fuller description and a more extended analysis of the plays will be made in the annual edition of the SPALDING OFFICIAL BASE BALL GUIDE, to be published in March. Of the six games played three were high class, the other three were mediocre.

FIRST GAME—AT CHICAGO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6.

In almost every respect the first game was the best played of the six and it was also one of the best—if not the best—world series game that has been played since this series was inaugurated, in 1904.

Each team made seven hits and each team made one misplay. Neither of the misplays gave either side an advantage. The game was won by Chicago by one run. As the second run happened to be a home run, batted by Felsch, he was given credit for the victory, although his lone run would not have been of so much value had it not been for a previous run which had been made by J. Collins.

What is known as the "breaks" in base ball were given a very one-sided distribution by Dame Fortune. The New York club was conceded to have played as well in quite all respects as their rivals, but were far more unlucky in having their best execution completely annihilated by extraordinary plays. A line drive by McCarty to left field, which ordinarily would have been good for anything from a single base hit to a home run, was caught by Jackson after a long slide forward on his chest, and the slow field enabled Felsch to make a one-hand stop of a line drive by Robertson that under other conditions almost surely would have been a home run.

In the last half of the third inning Schalk rapped a very fast grounder to Zimmerman, who stopped it beautifully and caught the batter at first. Cicotte singled to center field. J. Collins followed with a base hit to right field just inside the foul line and Cicotte tried to run to third base. Robertson made a perfect throw to Zimmerman, who touched Cicotte out while J. Collins ran to second. McMullin pushed a weak fly over second base and Kauff, after a hard run, stopped to play the ball on the bound, but the ball hit a bad place on the field and bounded to the right of Kauff and rose so far behind him that J. Collins had ample time in which to run home. E. Collins was an easy out. This was the first run scored in the series and the first run scored by Chicago. In the last half of the fourth Chicago made its second run of the game and the winning run. With one out Felsch batted a long drifting fly toward left center; Burns and Kauff ran for the ball and Burns camped under it, only to see the wind, which was blowing very strong, give the ball another twist and carry it over his head and beyond him into the bleachers.

In the first half of the fifth inning New York scored its only run. McCarty began with a long drive to right center for three bases. Had it not been for his lameness he probably would have made it a home run. It did not matter, as Sallee, the next batter, hit safely to right field and scored McCarty. Burns batted the ball very hard, but directly to Weaver, and an easy double play followed, as Sallee is a slow base-runner. Herzog struck out, the first strikeout of the series.

1, U. C. Faber, pitcher; 2, E. V. Cicotte, pitcher; 3, E. T. Collins, second base; 4, Joseph Jackson, center field.

GROUP OF CHICAGO WHITE SOX—WORLD CHAMPIONS, 1917.

In the seventh inning New York lost an almost certain chance to tie the score by Jackson's catch, to which reference has been made previously, and in the same inning Gandil, after a base hit, was left on third. In the eighth J. Collins batted for two bases with one out, but was trapped and run down between third and home. These were the best chances that either team had to score after the sixth inning. The score is as follows:

SECOND GAME—AT CHICAGO, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 7.

Weather conditions for the second game were even worse than those for the first game. The temperature was lower, the wind quite as brisk and the air much more penetrating. Manager Rowland decided to use Faber, a right-hand pitcher, against Schupp, the young left-hander, who had pitched for New York with such remarkable success all year.

Burns started the game for New York with a single, but, as had been the case on the previous day, which he also started with a single, failed to score.

In the second half of the second inning, with Fletcher out, Weaver to first, Robertson beat out a slow infield hit toward E. Collins. Holke rapped a line drive over second for a base, Robertson going to second. McCarty singled hard to right field, scoring both Robertson and Holke. The latter was assisted in part by Schalk's poor handling of the throw to the plate. McCarty ran to second and, when Faber threw Schupp out, went to third. Burns was out, Weaver to first.

In Chicago's half of the second Jackson batted a single to center field. Felsch followed with a single to right field. A slow start to field this hit really turned it into a single. Gandil batted a grounder to Schupp on the first bound. Ordinarily it would have been an easy play for Schupp, who is very cool and a good fielder, but it was apparent that he was overcome with stage fright or something akin to it, as he handled the ball very badly, permitting

Jackson to score. A perfect play by Schupp would have resulted in at least one player being retired and no run. Weaver batted a safe hit to left, Gandil running to second base. Schalk bunted and Schupp made a perfect play on the ball, retiring Gandil at third base. Weaver went to second on this play. Then Schupp made the worst of his misplays by giving Faber a base on balls when he had the better of him. This so clearly indicated fatal unsteadiness that McGraw took him out of the box with the bases filled and substituted Anderson. The latter struck out Leibold, who twice made a desperate effort to hit, and forced McMullin to bat a weak grounder to Fletcher, who tossed Faber out at second base. The scored was tied, and off Schupp.

In the second half of the fourth inning Weaver beat out an infield hit between Holke and Herzog. Schalk batted a single to right field, but Weaver was held at second. Faber fouled to Zimmerman. On a hit-and-run play Leibold was fortunate enough to place the ball over second, the safest place that could have been found, scoring Weaver and sending Schalk to third. McMullin hit over second base a grounder on which the New York infield again made a slow start, scoring Schalk. Leibold went to second. McGraw withdrew Anderson and put Perritt in the box. E. Collins hit to right for a base, another slow grounder scoring Leibold. McMullin went to third and E. Collins to second on the throw home. McCarty hurt his shoulder trying to touch out Leibold, which rendered him useless for the remainder of the series. McMullin and E. Collins scored on Jackson's single to right, Jackson going to second on the throw home. Felsch rapped a liner to Herzog for an unassisted double play. Chicago scored five runs in this inning. No more runs were made by either team in this contest. The score of the game is as follows:

THIRD GAME—AT NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10.

Showing a complete reversal of form or, rather, playing more to their base ball ability, the New York team blanked Chicago in New York in the first game of the world series in the latter city, largely because of the feeble batting of the Chicago players against Benton. He had splendid command of the ball and the great majority of attempts of the Chicago players to bat safely resulted in pop-ups to the infield. Of the five hits which were made by the Chicago club, two were made by E. Collins, two by Weaver and one by Felsch.

Mayor Mitchel threw out the first ball, and with two out E. Collins hit safely, but was left on base when Benton threw Jackson out at first. Strangely enough, Burns, who had started each game in Chicago with a single, struck out in his first chance in starting the first game in New York.

In the second half of the fourth inning the New York club made the only runs that were scored during the game. Robertson batted a long line hit, which struck the stand in deep right field, for three bases. Holke smashed a line drive to left for two bases, scoring Robertson. Rariden sacrificed, Cicotte to Gandil. Holke running to third. When Benton came to bat the Chicago infield played in, evidently expecting a bunt. Benton did not disappoint them, as he pushed twice at the ball and was then out on strikes. Burns tapped a slow hit to the infield and, in his haste to get the ball to first base, Cicotte threw poorly and Holke scored, the batter being safe at first.

In the fifth, sixth and first half of the seventh inning neither team made a hit. Herzog batted safely for New York in the second half of the seventh. In the eighth Weaver started for Chicago with a two-bagger but never scored, as he was touched out between second and third by Benton. In New York's half of the eighth, with two out, Robertson hit safely through the box, his third hit of the game. Two were out in the ninth for Chicago when E. Collins batted a slow grounder along the right field foul line. Jackson lifted a high fly to Fletcher and the game was over. The score of the third game is as follows:

FOURTH GAME—AT NEW YORK, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11.

Like the game on the preceding day, the Chicago players were unable to make a run, and the final score resulted 5 to 0 in favor of New York. Schupp was batted a little more freely than Benton, but was a hopeless enigma to the Chicago players when there were men on bases. E. Collins and Weaver, who had made the bulk of the hits against Benton, were powerless against Schupp.

1, Cicotte out at third, Robertson to Zimmerman; third inning, first game.
2, Burns steals second; first inning, first game.

The New York players began to score in the fourth and strung their runs out from that time until the finish of the game. With two out in the fourth inning, Kauff batted a long home run over Felsch's head; the ball hit the center field fence directly in the center of the ground on the bound, the longest hit made to that point on the Polo Grounds during the season. In New York's half of the fifth inning Fletcher singled smartly to right field; Robertson bunted safely, Fletcher going to second. Holke also bunted safely, and the bases were filled with no one out. Rariden batted into a double play, Faber to Schalk to Gandil. Robertson went to third on a double out and Holke to second. Schupp singled safely to center field, scoring Robertson. Holke tried to score but was thrown out at the plate by Felsch. In New York's half of the seventh inning Fletcher hit safely past third and went to third on a wild pitch. Robertson tapped the ball to Faber and was thrown out at first, Fletcher not trying to score. Holke was hit by a pitched ball. Rariden rolled a slow grounder to E. Collins and Fletcher scored on the out. Holke went to second and Weaver threw Schupp out at first.

New York scored its remaining two runs in the eighth inning. Danforth went in to pitch for Chicago for the only time during the series. Burns struck out. Herzog batted a Texas Leaguer over Weaver's head. With two strikes on Kauff, he batted the ball into the right field stand for a home run, Herzog scoring ahead of him. It was his second home run of the afternoon and he, with Hooper of the Boston Americans and Dougherty of Chicago Americans and Boston Americans, are the only three players who have performed this feat in world series games. Zimmerman batted a long triple to right, but Fletcher struck out, and Zimmerman died trying to steal home. The score is as follows:

FIFTH GAME—AT CHICAGO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13.

With an apparently safe lead, the New York team lost this game to Chicago by a combination of errors of commission and omission. So despondent were the Chicago players over the outlook that at the end of the fifth inning they had given the game up on the bench and some of them were almost in tears. In another fifteen minutes they were throwing their blankets in the air and acting like men who were demented, as the whole aspect of the game had changed, and the Giants, instead of being assured victors, were openly nervous as to the outcome.

In the first inning Burns, for the third time in succession in Chicago, reached first base the first time at bat. Instead of hitting safely he got a base on balls. Herzog singled to right, Burns going to third. Kauff hit over J. Collins' head for two bases, Burns scoring and Herzog going to third. Russell was taken out of the box and Cicotte substituted. Zimmerman batted to Weaver and Herzog was run down between third and home. Kauff ran to third and McMullin stopped a terrific drive by Fletcher and threw Kauff out at the plate. Thorpe had started in the game, but as Russell, the left-handed pitcher, had been taken out, Robertson was substituted for Thorpe and singled to center, Zimmerman scoring. On the throw home Fletcher went to third and Robertson to second. Cicotte threw Holke out. In Chicago's half of the third inning, with one out, E. Collins was given a base on balls. Jackson flied to Robertson and Collins scored on Felsch's long two-base hit to left field. Gandil flied to Kauff. In New York's half of the fourth inning, Rariden began with a single to right field. Sallee sacrificed, Rariden going to second. Burns hit safely to right field, scoring Rariden, and Burns went to second on J. Collins' fumble. Herzog batted to Weaver, who fumbled the ball, Burns going to third and Herzog being safe. Kauff batted to Gandil, who made a wild throw to first base, permitting Burns to score and Herzog to run to third. Zimmerman batted into a double play.

In Chicago's half of the sixth inning, with one out, Weaver singled to left field and went to third when Schalk hit safely to Herzog. Risberg batted in place of Cicotte, hitting safely to right field, scoring Weaver. J. Collins died at first on a grounder to Holke and McMullin was out, Herzog to first.

In New York's half of the seventh, Williams began to pitch for Chicago. Fletcher batted a long double against the left field fence. Robertson was out at first, and after a foul tip had glanced from Holke's head, rendering him almost unconscious, he struck out. Rariden batted to right field, scoring Fletcher. Sallee struck out, and so did Burns.

In Chicago's half of this inning, E. Collins flied to Fletcher. With two strikes against Jackson and no balls, Sallee made his only complaint of the series, insisting that Jackson was struck out on the next ball pitched. Jackson batted safely to left field, and so did Felsch. Gandil batted a low fly toward right field, which fell in front of Robertson, for two bases and Jackson and Felsch scored. Weaver was out, Fletcher to Holke, Gandil running to third. Schalk was given a base on balls. He started to steal second and a relay throw was tried, Rariden to Sallee to Herzog, but the latter muffed the ball and Gandil scored the tying run.

In Chicago's half of the eighth, J. Collins batted a weak fly near the right field foul line which was permitted to drop for a base-hit. McMullin sacrificed, Zimmerman to Holke. J. Collins scored on E. Collins' single to center. Jackson singled to right, a slow start being made for the ball, and E. Collins went to third. Robertson threw to third base to catch E. Collins and Zimmerman made a bad throw to second to stop Jackson, E. Collins scoring on the misplay. Sallee was taken out of the box and Perritt began pitching for New York. Felsch singled to center, scoring Jackson. Gandil fled to Burns. Felsch was out to Fletcher stealing second base. Lynn struck out. The score is as follows:

SIXTH GAME—AT NEW YORK, MONDAY, OCTOBER 15.

The sixth and deciding game resulted in a victory for Chicago by the score of 4 to 2, in spite of the fact that not a run was earned by the Chicago club. In Chicago's half of the fourth inning, Zimmerman made a bad throw to first base and E. Collins ran to second. Jackson lifted an easy fly to Robertson, who dropped the ball, E. Collins running to third. Felsch batted to Benton, who took the ball and ran to the third base line, turning E. Collins back to third base and eventually throwing to Zimmerman. In the meantime Rariden had advanced up the line from home plate, leaving it unprotected, and no one filled in behind him. Zimmerman foolishly ran the runner toward home and, too late, found there was no one to whom he could throw the ball. He chased E. Collins all the way into home plate, failing to touch him. Jackson moved to third base and Felsch to second on the play. Gandil singled to right field, scoring both of them. He tried to make second base but was thrown out. Burns caught Weaver out. Schalk singled to left field and Faber was given a base on balls. Fletcher threw out J. Collins.

In New York's half of the fifth inning, Holke struck out and Rariden was given a base on balls. Benton was taken out of the game and Wilhoit substituted as batter, he also receiving a base on balls. Burns hit smartly to short, but only succeeded in forcing

1, Leibold safe at home plate; McCarty hurt his shoulder while making this play and retired from the game; fourth inning, second game. 2, Robertson scoring in second inning of second game.

Wilhoit at second base. Herzog followed with a stinging triple against the right field wall, scoring Rariden and Burns. Kauff fouled out to Gandil.

In the first half of the ninth Weaver singled and Schalk and Faber went out in succession. Weaver ran to second on the second out. Leibold batted a low line drive to center, for which Kauff made a hard sprint but could not hold the ball when it struck his hands, and Weaver scored. The score of the game is as follows:

ST. LOUIS CITY SERIES.

Club.	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	P.C.
St. Louis Nationals.....	4	2	1	.667
St. Louis Americans.....	2	4	1	.333

Although seven games were played in the annual autumn series of the St. Louis clubs in 1917, six decided that the St. Louis National League team earned the honor of the local championship for the year. The seventh game, also the sixth of the series, was the second of a double header played to a 0-0 tie on the American League grounds Sunday, October 7, in nine innings. On the following day the teams again met on the American League club grounds and the Nationals won the decisive game by brisk batting.

In the main the contests were interesting. In one or two the fielding was quite poor. In almost all there was enough batting to interest.

The series was under the jurisdiction of the National Commission, but with slight modification in the rules. The players by reason of the agreement which they had with their clubs, were permitted to share in the receipts of all of the games. The players' share of the receipts was $3,700, divided on the usual basis of 60 and 40 per cent, with twenty-one eligible on the National League team, the winners, and twenty-four eligible on the American League team.

INDIANAPOLIS-TORONTO SERIES.

Club.	Games. Won. Lost.			P.C.
Indianapolis (American Association) ..	5	4	1	.800
Toronto (International League)	5	1	4	.200

When the schedules were drawn up originally for the International League and the American Association, a sort of after-season schedule was agreed upon by which the teams of the two different organizations would invade one another's territory in a drawnout scramble, which would have resulted in nothing except probable worse losses for the second division teams. Before the season had been very far advanced the American Association withdrew from this schedule and it was abandoned. For some time there has been a slight tendency to tempt fortune with a post-season arrangement of this character, both in the major and minor leagues. Its merits, if it has any, are yet to be developed. Its demerits, theoretically, are so many that it is not easy to understand why the plan should have the result of an experiment. It is simply a reversal to the old round robin system of tournaments long since discounted in sport.

The Toronto club, having won the championship of the International League, was not averse to a series of games with Indianapolis, which won the championship of the American Association. Toronto was successful in one game of the five which were played. That game was played at Toronto, September 26, resulting 4 to 0 in favor of the Canadians, their pitcher holding the Indianapolis champions to one hit, really a wonderful performance for that time of the year. In the other games the Indianapolis club, except in the last, won decisively.

MURNANE BENEFIT GAME.

The Boston Red Sox and a team of star players picked mostly from American League clubs played an exhibition game in Boston on Thursday, September 27, for the benefit of the family of the late Tim Murnane, veteran player and sport writer. The "all-star" team probably was one of the greatest ever brought together. Cobb, Speaker and Jackson played in all three fields. Attendance was 17,119 and receipts exceeded $14,000.

Mostly for Comparison

Both for interest and information the RECORD reproduces a photograph of the Hartford team of 1876, together with an account of the game between Hartford and the Athletics. On the Hartford team were a number of players who subsequently became among the most famous of their day. These were Remsen, Jack Burdock, Ferguson, Tommy Bond, Tom York, Doug Allison, Higham. The Athletics had four, including Hall, Force, Sutton and Knight.

National League Extra Inning Record

The National League record for long games was broken on August 22, when Brooklyn defeated Pittsburgh, at Brooklyn, 6—5, in the twenty-second inning. The credit, although a very slim credit, of winning the longest game in the National League still belongs to Marquard, for he went on the mound in the twenty-first inning with the score tied and was in the box when victory came in the twenty-second.

The twenty-four inning game between the Athletics and the Red Sox was played on Saturday, September 1, 1906. The twenty-one inning game between the Giants and the Pirates took place on July 17, 1914. Marquard, like Coombs, went the entire route. Marquard now is the holder of three National League records. His record of nineteen straight victories in 1911 still stands. He won the longest game twirled in full by any National League pitcher and also won the longest game ever played in the league. The score:

Annual Meetings

NATIONAL LEAGUE MEETING.

Members of the National League held their annual meeting at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, in New York City, on December 11. John K. Tener was re-elected president for one year. The championship for 1917 was awarded to the New York club. John A. Heydler was re-elected secretary and treasurer of the league for a period of four years.

At the second day's session it was agreed to go to Chicago in order to hold the joint conference with the American League. It was the sense of the league that the 154-game schedule would be preferable to one of 140 games. The constitution of the league was so amended that a player suspended for a period longer than ten days may have the right of appeal to the Board of Directors. The league endorsed President Tener's proposition for a pro rata division of the world series receipts. It was decided not to change the provision in the constitution which prohibits a club from withdrawing a waiver after such has been asked. It was decided that each club should set aside one day in the season to be designated as "Clark Griffith Bat and Ball Day." On this day twenty-five per cent. of the gross receipts is to be turned over to the Griffith Bat and Ball Fund. The constitution was so amended in regard to an open date as to include within the term of "open date" any day on which no game is scheduled. The league also adopted a uniform code of club rules.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MEETING.

Members of the American League met at Chicago, December 12. Charles A. Comiskey, of the Chicago club, was re-elected vice-president, and a new Board of Directors was elected, consisting of Phil D. C. Ball, St. Louis; Frank J. Navin, Detroit; Ben S. Minor, Washington, and Ben Shibe of Philadelphia. It was agreed to retain the twenty-five player limit and to continue spring training trips as usual. The championship was awarded to the Chicago club.

The league agreed to hold a Bat and Ball Fund Day, on which twenty-five per cent. of the gross receipts is to be donated to the Griffith Bat and Ball Fund.

JOINT MEETING OF MAJOR LEAGUES.

At a joint meeting of the major league owners, in Chicago, December 14, it was agreed that there should be no curtailment of the playing season, no reducing of the player limit, nor any limitation of the spring training season. It was decided to open the season of 1918 on April 16 and play 154 games. The plan for a wider division of the receipts of the world series was referred to President Johnson of the American League and August Herrmann, chairman of the National Commission. The American League determined upon the twenty-five player limit, as had been the rule in 1917, and the National League determined upon a twenty-two player limit, as had been the rule in their organization.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Base Ball Leagues was held at Louisville, Ky., beginning November 12. The first day's session was adjourned after organization. The principal topic of discussion was the reorganization of the American Association and the International League, or rather a combination of four of the clubs of the American Association with four of the clubs of the International League to form a new organization to be known as the Union League. This was not formally touched upon by the delegates. Clubs proposed for the Union League were Louisville, Indianapolis, Columbus, Toledo, Buffalo, Toronto, Baltimore and Newark.

At the next day's session, after a session of less than an hour, the Association adjourned in memory of T. H. Murnane, formerly Base Ball editor of the Boston Globe and a member of the National Board of Arbitration, who had died during the year. The reports of President Sexton and Secretary Farrell were read and approved.

On the third day of the meeting the National Association, by a vote of eleven to two, decided that there should be no redistricting of the minor leagues, which ended the plan to make a new Union League. The votes in favor of a new league were cast by Edward Barrow, President of the International League, and Al Tearney, President of the Three-I League. By a unanimous vote it was decided to hold the 1918 convention at Peoria, Ill. Invitations were received from a large number of other cities, including San Francisco, St. Joseph, Mo.; Memphis, Atlantic City, Asbury Park and Hot Springs, Ark.

A patriotic resolution, introduced by Hon. Clyde Shropshire of Nashville, Tenn., indorsing the President of the United States and all war activities, was adopted amid cheers.

It was also voted to add a clause to all minor league contracts forbidding players to take part in exhibition games without the consent of the officials of the club and league to which they belong. The major leagues have had such a clause in their contracts for a couple of years and the minors believe that it works well, preventing a lot of hippodroming after the season is over.

A committee consisting of President Sexton, Secretary Farrell and Harry Stahlhoefer of the Central League will confer with the National Commission in January with reference to the holding up of the purchase money on drafted players, which is now being retained until it is seen whether said players join the national army or not. President Sexton also announced that he will soon call a meeting of several of the league presidents to consider a plan of redistricting the Three-I, Central and Western Leagues and the Western and Central Associations. In view of the hard times caused by the war it is believed that some way can be found to make more compact and less expensive circuits in the leagues in the Middle West, thus enabling them to get through another season.

A resolution was adopted thanking the Louisville club and fans for their liberal hospitality during the stay of the Base Ball men, and also one of thanks to the newspapers represented for their full and accurate accounts of the meetings.

The delegates were taken in automobiles to Camp Zachary Taylor, five miles from the center of the city, where 40,000 soldiers are in training. They were met at the entrance to the camp by Lieutenant Colonel Lawrence Halstead, Chief of Staff to Major General Hale, in command of the camp. Colonel Halstead is a nephew of the late Murat Halstead, the famous Cincinnati journalist.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE MEETING.

Members of the International League held their annual meeting at the Hotel Imperial in New York on Monday, December 10, and awarded the championship pennant to Toronto. The Newark, Rochester, Richmond, Providence, Montreal and Buffalo clubs were represented. The Buffalo franchise was declared forfeited because of unpaid obligations. President Barrow tendered his resignation the day after the league adjourned.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION MEETING.

At an adjourned session of the American Association it was decided to reduce the player limit from seventeen to sixteen and begin the season about May 1 or 2. It was also decided by the members that the "spit ball," "shine ball," "emery ball," and all other similar deliveries should be forbidden in the league, and that for each offense a fine of $25 should be imposed. The association decided to return to the double umpire system and left the decision in regard to playing off postponed games to the home club. This gave the right to the home club to play a postponed game during the first series if so desired.

Protested game—Philadelphia at Boston, April 17; replayed September 12 and won by Philadelphia.

Games remaining unplayed—At Philadelphia, September 14 and 15, with Brooklyn; at St. Louis, September 19, with Brooklyn.

Two hundred and forty-four players were engaged in the 1917 championship campaign of the National League. Of this number 170 participated in the minimum of fifteen games required for rating in the official averages, with two young stars—Roush (24) and Hornsby (21)—heading the list.

Six players reached the .300 class, as against nine in 1916. This decrease, however, was more than offset by the gain in .290 hitters, there being seven the past season, as against one in 1916.

The new champion, Ed J. Roush, was born in Oakland City, Ind., May 8, 1893, and is one of the youngest players to win the championship title. He started his professional career in 1912 with the Evansville, Ind., club. The following year he graduated to the Chicago Americans, but was sent to the Lincoln, Neb., team for further experience. In 1914 he joined the Indianapolis Federal club, and was transferred to the Newark Federals in 1915. In 1916 New York secured his services, and later turned him over to Cincinnati in an exchange that also included Mathewson and Herzog. Roush throws and bats left-handed; is 5.11 in height and weighs about 175 pounds. In winning the title, Roush faced opposing pitchers 567 times. He reached first 27 times on bases on balls; 5 times on being hit by pitched balls, and 8 times as result of fielding errors. He made 141 single base hits, 19 doubles, 14 triples and 4 home runs. His sacrifice hits were 13, and he struck out but 24 times in 136 games.

The leading run-scorer was George Burns, with 103. Max Carey led the base runners with 46 stolen bases, George Burns being the next with 40, and Kauff third with 30. Charles Deal had most sacrifice hits—29.

Roush and Kauff tied for greatest number of single safe hits, each having 141. Groh led in two-base hits with 39; Hornsby in three-base hits with 17, and Crayath and Robertson had 12 home runs apiece. The hard-hitting Cravath led all others in extra bases made on long hits with the substantial total of 97.

In team aggregates the champion New Yorks led in runs scored with 635, and also led in base-stealing with 162 steals. The champions also made most single hits—1,080. Philadelphia led in doubles with 225; Cincinnati in triples with 100 and New York in home runs with 39, of which 21 were made at home and 18 on foreign grounds. Cincinnati, with 474 extra bases scored on long hits, led the league in this respect. Chicago made most sacrifice hits, namely, 202.

Luderus was the only player to participate in all 154 games played by his club. Groh played in 156 of the 157 games played by Cincinnati, and Carey in 155 of 157 played by Pittsburgh.

Based solely on the season's averages, the strongest batting club would consist of Packard, pitcher; Thomas Clarke, catcher; Chase or Holke, first base; Cutshaw, second; Groh, third; Hornsby, short; Roush, Wheat and Kauff in the outfield. The team average would be .301—this despite the fact that the leading hitter of the second basemen is forty-sixth on the list with .259.

An added feature of the 1917 averages is the noting of right and left-handed batsmen; "l" and "r" denotes that the batsman turn to right when facing left-handed pitchers. The standing follows:

The Official Fielding Averages of the National League for the season of 1917 show substantial improvement in this department by comparison with the 1916 ratings. The total fielding chances offered the past season were 52,196, of which unusually large total all but 1,875 were cleanly played. In the season of 1916 the total chances offered were 51,732 and the misplays 1,939. The Boston, Brooklyn and Cincinnati clubs increased their respective error totals over their 1916 figures, but these lapses were more than offset by the improved defensive work of the five other clubs.

The champions led the league in fielding and were charged with the lowest number of errors—208. The New York catchers also marked up an unusually low record of passed balls, with seven for 158 games. St. Louis had the greatest number of fielding chances, namely, 6,680; Pittsburgh the lowest with 6,460.

New York played 45 errorless games; Philadelphia 43; St. Louis 37; Boston and Pittsburgh 35 each; Cincinnati and Brooklyn 34 each, and Chicago 33.

In individual play, John Miller led the first basemen with an average of .998, with Holke credited with the greatest number of chances offered—1,724. Miller's record of one error in 545 chances is noteworthy.

The second basemen were led by John Rawlings of Boston, a newcomer, with 467 accepted chances out of 473 offered in 96 games. Dave Shean had 774 chances—the top figure—of which he missed 30.

Henry Groh played in 154 games at third and headed all others in that position with an average of .966, he making but 18 errors in more than half a thousand opportunities. Baird had most chances offered (530), followed by Zimmerman with 525.

At shortstop, John Rawlings again appears in first place. The honors, however, belong to Arthur Fletcher, with Maranville following. The first named had 880 chances offered, of which he accepted all but 39. William Kopf, playing his first complete season, had 814 chances in 145 games.

Charles Jackson of Pittsburgh heads the outfielders, being charged with but one error in 36 games. George Paskert, having played in 138 contests, is entitled to the leadership. Max Carey had the unusually large total of 473 chances, of which he accepted all but 10. Charles Stengel is first with 30 assists from the outfield, Carey following with 28.

The catchers were led in fielding by John Adams of Philadelphia, who misplayed but one of the 171 chances offered. William Killifer and Ivey Wingo each caught 120 games, the former having greatest number of chances—765. Lew McCarty had but one passed ball in 54 games; Hank Gowdy, one in 49 games, and George Gibson, one in 35 games.

The pitchers were led by Eppa Rixey and Al Demaree, with perfect fielding in 39 games each, the left-hander being credited with the post of honor by reason of his 108 chances as against Demaree's 72. Alexander had most chances (133), with one error; followed by Barnes of Boston, with one misplay in 115 chances.

Harry H. Myers of Brooklyn secured records in four different positions—outfield, and at first, second and third base. Zeider of Chicago is rated in the second and third base and shortstop standings, and Fitzpatrick of Boston appears among the outfielders and second and third basemen.

John (Honus) Wagner's 1917 record shows he played in 47 games at first, where he accepted 455 out of 462 chances. He also played in 18 games at third, where he made three misplays in 58 chances.

The left-hand throwing outfielders and first basemen, as well as the left-hand pitchers, are so noted in the tables for the first time.

In arranging the National League pitchers of 1917 in order of their effectiveness, it was found expedient to divide the 83 pitchers into three groups. The first of these embraces all those who bore the brunt of the campaign and pitched at least 10 complete games; the second, those who participated in a minimum of 10 games, regardless of the length of same; and the third comprising all others who took part in a championship contest.

Alexander won the title of leading pitcher with an average of least runs earned per game of 1.85. Perritt of New York was a close second with 1.88, followed by Schupp with 1.95. The latter led all others in games won and lost with a percentage of .750, this figure representing 21 winning and 7 losing games. Five of the ten leading pitchers were left-handers.

The percentage of games won and lost is given, with notation of the relative position of each pitcher, this special record being supplied in order that comparison may be made with the official earned-run rating.

The value of rating pitchers on the latter system is again demonstrated. Basing the effectiveness of a pitcher solely on games won and lost, it would show the champion New Yorks heading the list with three men—Schupp, Sallee and Perritt—and in addition two more of its pitchers among the first ten. The earned-run records, however, show in good measure the effectiveness of other pitchers, regardless of where their respective clubs finished in the race. Schneider of Cincinnati, for illustration, barely won more games than he lost, yet is rated fourth in the official standing with an earned-run average of 1.97. As far as figures can tell, he suffered by reason of poor fielding support at critical stages of some of his games; for 53 of the 128 runs scored off him were made after chances had been offered to retire the side. An opposite case was that of Meadows of St. Louis, rated eighth in games won and lost and twenty-sixth in the official—all due to the fact that 91 of the 99 runs scored off him during the season were earned.

Phil Douglas of Chicago pitched in the greatest number of games—51—followed by Barnes of Boston, with 50. Alexander scored most shutouts (8), and he also led in complete games pitched with 35. Alexander led the right-handers in strikeouts with 201 out of the 1,531 batsmen facing him. Vaughn of Chicago led the left-handers with the higher percentage of 195 strikeouts out of 1,216 chances.

In consecutive victories, Sallee and Schneider tied with a run of nine games each, the former making his record from June 30 to August 16, and the latter during the winning streak of Cincinnati from June 9 to July 26.

Two victories in one afternoon were scored July 1 by Toney of Cincinnati, against Pittsburgh; on September 3, by Alexander of Philadelphia, against Brooklyn; and on September 18, by Doak of St. Louis, also against Brooklyn.

The outstanding pitching feature of the 1917 season—if not of modern Base Ball history—was the game played in Chicago May 2, when Toney of Cincinnati and Vaughn of Chicago went nine innings without allowing a safe hit to either side. In the tenth Vaughn allowed two hits, losing the game, 1 to 0. Toney, however, continued unhit and scored the only no-hit game of the Nationals' 1917 season.

The individual records, in detail, follow, the left-handers being noted with "L":

Eleven points separated the first three in the pennant race of 1917, St. Paul and Louisville tying for second place.

Of the two runners-up, St. Paul and Louisville, which finished second, with 571 points each, Louisville had the honor of winning the series with the ultimate pennant winner, Indianapolis, the latter defeating Louisville only 7 times to 15 victories for the Kentucky metropolises.

After an interval of nine seasons Indianapolis had the honor of a pennant winner, 1908 being the year. Exactly the same cities comprised the circuit then as now. Louisville finished second, same as last season, but St. Paul was even more lowly than Toledo in 1917, with only 316 points. Kansas City was seventh, the same position it occupied at the close of last season.

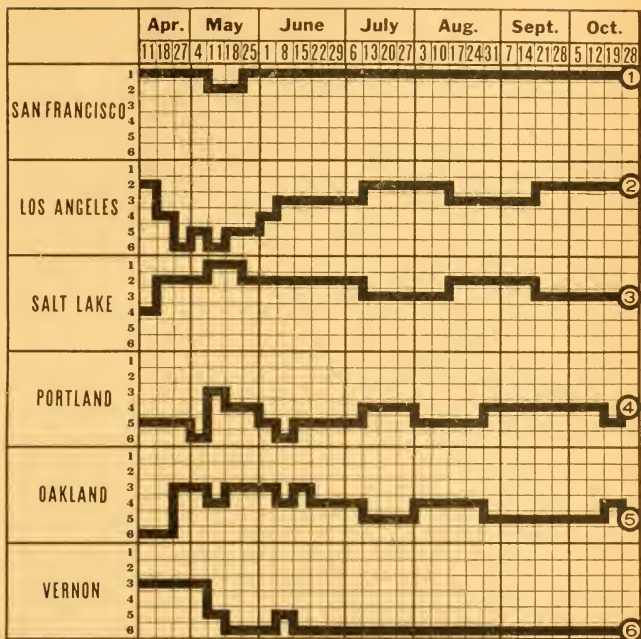

The club batting table shows some interesting features. For instance, Kansas City, which was next to last in won and lost, led in club batting. Indianapolis, the pennant winner, was next to last in the same department. Kansas City scored more runs than the winner, made more hits and total base-hits, more sacrifice hits and got more bases on balls. In preventing base-stealing, however, Kansas City fell down, and a further analysis would seem to show that with slightly better battery work, the standing of the team would have been materially changed.

Los Angeles had by far the greatest number of postponed games, 11.

Koerner, first base for San Francisco, led in most games played, 211.

San Francisco, with the exception of a short interval in May was never out of the first position.

Tobin of Salt Lake, who was second in batting, led with greatest number of runs scored, 149, his team leading in this department in the club totals.

After the first days of June, as the diagram shows, the race for second place was between Los Angeles and Salt Lake, both clubs reversing positions several times during the contest.

Rath of Salt Lake, the league leader in batting, also had the greatest number of sacrifice hits, with 58, a most unusual occurrence. He did not make a home run during the entire year.

Erickson of San Francisco, who led the pitchers in least number of runs per game and was second in the games won and lost column, had an unusual number of bases on balls for a pitcher, 153, but he was far and away the leader in strikeouts, with 307 in 62 games.

Accumulation of hits and runs in the long Pacific Coast season stretch into formidable amounts when measured, not in feet but in miles. Tobin of Salt Lake, who led in runs scored, 149 in 189 games, made 265 one-base hits. These two items alone total a distance of over twelve miles, and if it were possible to include the bases on balls and extra bases which did not realize runs, several additional miles could no doubt be added.

Note—The pitcher's percentage under pitchers' records is determined by dividing the total number of at-bats into the total number of hits made off the pitcher.

Orcutt of Wilkes-Barre led in greatest number of stolen bases, which was reflected in runs scored, his total of 83 being the highest in that department for the season. Strait, who batted .324 in 118 games, made 66 runs, being able to do so by his persistence in waiting, 48 bases on balls, and his base-running, 42 stolen bases. Madden of Syracuse got as many bases on balls, stole 49 bases and scored 69 runs, yet only batted .232.

Tri-Copper League

This league, which has been in existence for the last three years, comprises the Ray Con Mine at Ray, Ariz.; the Ray Con Mill at Hayden, Ariz., and the A. S. & R. Smelter at Hayden, Ariz. In 1915 and 1916 the Mine club won the series and received the trophy, a cup. In 1917 the Mill club won.

Most of the players are professionals, having played in the National, American or Class A leagues, and are paid the same salary as minor leagues in order to interest and for the enjoyment of the employees at the various mines. The officials have gone to a great deal of expense to get good teams.

ALASKAN ENGINEERING COMMISSION TEAM, COOKE INLET LEAGUE.

Cooke Inlet League

Many will be surprised to read that Base Ball is played in what is supposed to be a land of perpetual snow, ice and icebergs. For four months of the year ideal Base Ball weather prevails. In April the Cooke Inlet Base Ball League was formed, comprising teams representing Anchorage City, Matanuska of the Matanuska Valley, Potter of the Turnagain Arm District and a team from the forces of the Alaskan Engineering Commission at Anchorage. The first game was played May 20 and the last September 16. Games were played on Sundays and holidays. Potter won the pennant. Base Ball fans in Alaska are numerous and the seed for the national game has been sown to take root and stay.

ALL-NAVY TEAM, ISLAND OF GUAM.

MARINE TEAM, ISLAND OF GUAM.

A New Championship

Away out in the middle or somewhere near the middle of the tossing Pacific Ocean there is a little spot of land about as large as the point of a pin on the top of a silk hat, which belongs to the United States and is known as Guam. There is nothing in the United States or related to the United States which can evade Base Ball. They have it in Guam. Those behind it are the men of the United States Navy. Mr. A. G. Spalding once observed that "Base Ball follows the flag." It is just as true as the fact that there is Base Ball and that there is an American flag. Wherever the American colors go the national game goes with them and every country into which Base Ball has been introduced has been the better for it in every possible way.

Information regarding the league has been sent to the RECORD by Acting Pay Clerk J. C. Poskepny. He calls attention to the fact that Rice, formerly of the Washington American League club, and Barney, formerly with Pittsburgh and Louisville, had played at Guam.

The circuit was composed of six clubs and the standing of the six clubs at the finish of the season was as follows:

	W.	L.	P.C.		W.	L.	P.C.
All Navy	38	18	.679	42d Company Marines..	29	27	.518
40th Company Marines.	35	21	.625	41st Company Marines..	22	34	.393
Civil Employes	30	26	.536	Guam Cadets.....	18	38	.321

The clubs of the league were three Marine Corps teams, one located at Sumay, another at Camp Barnett and one at Agana; one Navy team, composed of the enlisted personnel of the Naval Station, Agana; one Civil Employes team, composed of natives who are employed by the government at this station, and the Guam Cadets, composed of members of the military branch of the Guam Militia.

What may prove of great interest to the general Base Ball public in regard to the advancement of Base Ball in foreign lands is that for the size and population of Guam, which is thirty miles long and about six miles wide, with about 15,000 persons on it, there is as much sporting spirit as there is in the same area in any place in the United States. People here are "just gone" on the national game and it proves to be the principal sport. Cock fighting prevails to a certain extent, but it is getting short lived.

The Guam Base Ball League began its season Thanksgiving Day, November 30, 1916, and played to July 30, 1917. Games were played on three diamonds, all up to date in their layouts. Games were played every Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday. After the season closed, games were scheduled on permissible days, that is to say that during August, September and October the rainy season prevails and surely there is plenty of it, for it happens to rain about every half hour continually for three months. Then things clear up around Thanksgiving and there is smooth sailing until the following July.

GRAND NATIONAL ALL-AMERICA BASE BALL TEAM

Players on National Championship Teams who have played in one position in 50 games (pitchers 25 games) or over and whose combined records of Fielding and Batting (pitchers' record includes Percentage of Victories, Fielding and Batting) rank the highest in each position covering the period of forty-seven years from the commencement of Professional Base Ball, in 1871, to 1917, inclusive.

[NOTE.—The All-America Teams are made up of players in Champion Teams and not necessarily on best records.]

Position, Name and Club	Year	Games	Percentage Won	Fielding Percentage	Batting Percentage	Total
Pitcher— A. G. SPALDING Boston	1875	63	.899	.858	.318	2.075
Catcher— J. T. MEYERS New York	1912	122973	.358	1.331
First Base— A. C. ANSON Chicago	1881	83975	.399	1.374
Second Base— ROSS BARNES Boston	1873	60865	.453	1.318
Third Base— H. STEINFELDT Chicago	1906	150954	.327	1.281
Shortstop— GEO. WRIGHT Boston	1873	59940	.422	1.362
Left Field— JOS. J. KELLEY Baltimore	1894	129951	.391	1.342
Center Field—* HUGH DUFFY Boston	1893	131958	.378	1.336
Right Field— WM. KEELER Baltimore	1896	127973	.392	1.365
Total Average.....899	.940	.377	1.416

*Wm. Keeler played center field on the Brooklyn team of 1899, and in this position had a record in fielding of .970 and in batting of .376, a total of 1.346, which would entitle him to the center field position on the Grand National "All-America" Team, but as he had a higher record as right fielder of the Baltimore team in 1896, the center field was given to Hugh Duffy of Boston with the next highest record of 1.336. A clerical error was made in the Record Book of 1908, in placing Hugh Jennings' name in the shortstop position on the Grand National "All-America" Team, with his splendid record of .943 in fielding and .386 in batting, totaling 1.329, instead of Geo. Wright, with his still more remarkable record of .940 in fielding and .422 in batting, totaling 1.362.

PITCHERS' RECORD OF VICTORIES.

Pitchers (who have pitched in 25 games or over) having the highest percentage of victories for each year in Championship Games, from 1871 to 1917, inclusive.

Salt Lake, vs. Los Angeles, August 5, 1917, made twelve runs in the third inning.

June 21, 1917, Ray McKee, San Francisco, stole third with the bases full and got away with it; he was safe and runner on third scored when the umpire called a balk on pitcher T. Hughes of Salt Lake.

*From Secretary of War Baker

The officers' training camps held by the Government were attended by tens of thousands of young men whose minds had been trained in the colleges and high schools of the country and whose splendid athletic condition was due to the collegiate and high school system of athletics. They were a national asset of incalculable value, hence collegiate athletics should have in mind the possibility of this kind of emergency in the future. It therefore becomes more obviously important to spread the benefits of college athletics as widely as possible throughout the student body and to prevent their being monopolized by a few selected representatives. Both the training and the spirit of the athletic field lend themselves readily to military service, and as the secondary schools of the country model their activities on those of the colleges, both the practice and example of the colleges in athletics become important.

The War Department will ask Congress to authorize the use of reserve officers and other qualified military men for the establishment of reserve officers' training camps, and hopes shortly to be able to supply suitable instructors and arms to colleges willing to establish military training. This is supplemented by widespread athletic activities in the colleges.

The encouragement of college athletics by intercollegiate games is in itself stimulating and beneficial when it does not lead to such specialization as restricts the value of college athletics to a few specialists and denies it to the student body at large. It ought never to be forgotten that the primary purpose of collegiate athletics is a large number of sound bodies rather than a small number of athletic specialists. The military usefulness of this principle is obvious, but it is further fortified by all those considerations which look to our national strength as based upon vigorous manhood.

*The above letter and the one on opposite page were read at the meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, held at the Hotel Astor, New York, December 27, 1917.

From Secretary of the Navy Daniels

Nothing could serve to prove the falsity of the widespread notion—prevalent before the war—that young America lacked the sterner virtues of the Paul Reveres and Nathan Hales than the readiness with which they flocked into the army and navy when war was declared. Their patriotic zeal made them so insistent to begin training at once that it taxed the country to provide the facilities demanded. Colleges set the pace in sending, no, in witnessing the entrance of their choicest spirits into those camps and stations and cantonments and ships where they could be most quickly trained for military service. Young collegians who had trained in athletics were seen to possess an incalculable advantage over their associates who had permitted delving in Greek roots to deny them time to develop their muscles.

As the war goes on and army and navy must increase as rapidly as the industrial plants can equip them and tonnage can be supplied to transport them to France, the call, insistent and imperative, will soon come to all young men under thirty-one years of age.

They are now thinking about the duty before them. Most colleges have added military instruction. This training and college athletics will make the youths fit for the service calling for strength and ability to endure hardships. Softness is incompatible with efficient military service. In every branch college men are proving that in modern education a sound body must go with a sound mind. How will the younger men be made ready for what they will shortly be called upon to do?

Colleges will answer that question by encouraging college athletics, and emphasizing those games which insure that all the student body will be benefited by it. Intercollegiate games stimulate interest and should be encouraged. The stimulus of athletics, both in an improved mind and an improved body, is everywhere recognized. Let it be emphasized more now that the need for youths of sinew and stuff is more felt than ever before.

College Base Ball in War Times

BY EDWARD B. MOSS, NEW YORK.

EDWARD B. MOSS.

The entry of the United States into the world war created havoc with the college Base Ball season of 1917, particularly throughout the eastern and New England sections of the country. The declaration of hostilities, coming early in the season, was followed by an immediate cancellation of schedules in some cases and curtailment or substitution in others. All told, it was a chaotic and unsatisfactory period from the standpoint of the 'varsity diamond game, with little of permanent value in the way of performances or records.

Conditions for the coming spring promise to be more stable, however, for government and service officials of all grades and ranks have urged a continuation of college sports to the fullest extent compatible with co-operation in the more important duties and objects of the times. The recommendations of Secretary of War Newton D. Baker and Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels addressed to the National Collegiate Athletic Association advocating activity in this direction, carried particular weight and led to the adoption of resolutions calling for the maintenance of such athletic sports and competition as might be possible under existing circumstances.

Owing to the fact that conditions differ widely at various colleges and universities, no set standards can be applied to all the educational institutions of the country in their relation to athletics during the period of the war. Many have increased or so changed their curriculums by the addition of military training, drills, reserve officers' training camps and other kindred war activities as to leave little time for organized sport. Others have lost through enlistment in army, navy, Red Cross and similar service so many of their undergraduates, that any attempt to arrange and play out a Base Ball schedule, for instance, would be an undertaking doomed to failure in advance.

Base Ball will be played, however, at almost every institution during the coming season. In some cases the contests will not extend beyond impromptu matches arranged for scrub or informal teams during the few spare hours of the week-end. At other colleges regular, if curtailed, schedules are being arranged. In the East, Cornell, Pennsylvania, United States Military Academy, Dartmouth, Lafayette, Wesleyan, Maine, Carlisle, Holy Cross, Fordham and Columbia have all signified their intention of playing the game to some extent. At still other institutions the athletic authorities are uncertain, at this writing, regarding the probable attitude toward Base Ball. In the Middle West the regular Conference schedule is in course of preparation, while many of the colleges of the South and Far West will have teams.

Whatever the outcome of the present agitation, the arrangements will be more satisfactory than the unsettled and uncertain situation which arose shortly after the opening of the college Base Ball season of 1917. The records of the college teams of the past year give a clear insight of the immediate effect of the entry of the nation into the war. In place of lists of games played, ranging from the twenty to thirty contests of normal times, there will be found in some cases but two or three matches. With the exception of a few Southern and Californian colleges, which began the season extremely early, there is hardly a collegiate team which participated in more than fifty per cent of the usual number of games. In some instances the names of prominent teams are missing for the first time in many years.

Space will not permit of a complete analysis of the work of more than a few of those teams which were fortunate enough to be able to partly play out their schedules. In the eastern and New England sections several excellent combinations were developed, especially at Tufts and Holy Cross. Brown and Amherst also made good showings, while Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth did not play to any extent. In the Pennsylvania section Swarthmore, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and Lehigh went through schedules varying from a few to a score of games with fair success. Tufts won eight out of ten games, including a shutout against Holy Cross, but the latter team had previously scored a similar victory over Tufts, thus leaving the question of supremacy undecided. Amherst's season, though short, produced three victories out of four games played against Williams, which partly atoned for other defeats. Brown's best showing was made against Rutgers and Pennsylvania.

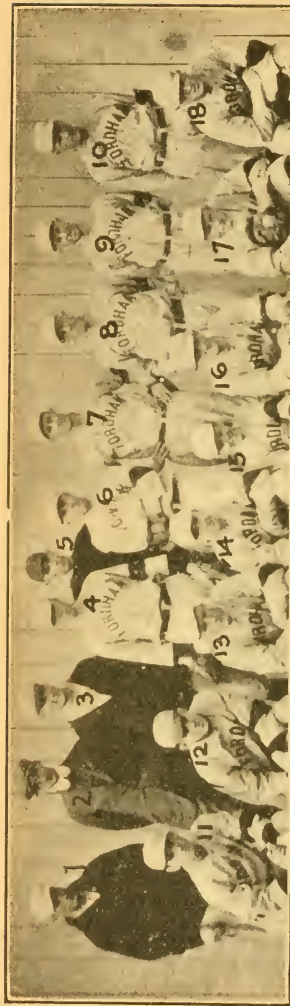

Penn State won two out of three games from Pittsburgh and lost similarly to West Virginia. Lehigh played twenty-two games, winning sixteen and losing six. All three games with Lafayette were won and double figure victories gained from Penn State, Lafayette, Pittsburgh and Williams. A 3—2 win from Holy Cross in a sixteen-inning contest was the feature of the season. Pittsburgh won fourteen out of eighteen games, including two straight from Lafayette, and held Swarthmore to a 1—1 tie in fifteen innings.

In New York State and vicinity there was little Base Ball played among the colleges. Syracuse, Colgate and Cornell figured in but few contests. The United States Military Academy team met ten opponents at West Point, winning all but the game against Holy Cross, which the invaders captured by a 5—2 score. Union, Hamilton, Manhattan and New York University did well in view of the short season and uncertain schedules. Princeton did not attempt inter-varsity play and Rutgers broke even in an eight-game schedule.

The Southern 'varsity teams, due to their early start, made a better showing. Louisiana State won seven out of thirteen, which included two ties, and two defeats of Illinois. Virginia Poly captured nine out of ten games. West Virginia University played sixteen games, winning ten. Virginia and Georgetown University played less than five games each. Clemson A. and M. College completed a twenty-six game schedule with fair success. Davidson did equally as well in a shorter list of contests. North Carolina State lost eight out of thirteen games, but several of these were close matches against strong combinations where a timely hit would have changed the result. Illinois was the only team to defeat Kentucky.

Some of the best college Base Ball of the year was played in the Middle West. Ohio State won the Conference championship, losing but one titular contest to Indiana, and this lone defeat was the only break in a string of fifteen games. Purdue was less successful, dropping several important games by close scores. Indiana also fell short of previous season records. Notre Dame won eleven out of fifteen games, Illinois being the most successful against her. Missouri played seventeen games, of which sixteen were won in a row, the final contest of the schedule being taken by Kansas, 4—3. The Michigan Aggies won six out of eleven games. There were other colleges of the section which played such short schedules as to afford little, if any, line on their ability. Further west the Rocky Mountain Conference season was abandoned with the declaration of war and Colorado retained the title won in 1916.

On the Pacific Coast the University of California was represented by an excellent team. Three games were won from Stanford and a decisive defeat administered to Southern California. An even break was secured against the Olympic Club of San Francisco, and the professional team of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League found the collegians no mean opponents. Stanford participated in twenty-two games, winning about a third of the scheduled contests. Washington State College played six games, winning all. In the southwestern section Arizona, Texas A. and A., University of Texas, New Mexico and Rice Institute all had fair success, but the effects of the war was apparent at all times during the season.

NEW ENGLAND COLLEGE SEASON.

BY HENRY T. CLAUS, BOSTON.

If ever there was a war-ridden college Base Ball season, it was the season of 1917. Starting almost simultaneously with America's entrance into the war, it had to bear the full brunt of the first attack. College undergraduates, always emotional, were the first to be swept away from their normal duties into the army and navy ranks. They did not even wait to see where they could do the most good. The result, for Base Ball at least, was almost disastrous. Some colleges had no nines at all and others found themselves badly handicapped by the loss of so many men. Schedules, it is needless to mention, were sadly disarranged. All in all, college Base Ball had just about its poorest season in years.

The New England colleges which, in the first flush of war, abandoned 'varsity Base Ball were Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth. For Yale, in particular, this action was highly unfortunate. The Blue, led by Captain Harry McGore, seemed likely to have one of its greatest teams. It had gone through a Southern trip without a defeat and stood in line for a championship when war came to disband. The effect of a similar course on Harvard and Dartmouth was not so serious, as neither college boasted of any unusual prospects. Both, in fact, looked to have teams below their average.

If Yale had continued its nine might have won the championship, but it would have had to defeat Tufts and Holy Cross to do it. These two teams were the class of New England and it would be unfair to either to award the championship to the other. How evenly matched they were may be determined from the fact that each won a shutout victory from the other, Holy Cross defeating Tufts, 1 to 0, and Tufts defeating Holy Cross, 2 to 0. A third game was planned but never played. It ought to have been staged if for no other reason than to decide which was the best college team in this section of the country. There are many unprejudiced observers who believe that Tufts would have won. Under Coach Slattery's direction the college had another team of slashing hitters, its eight regulars averaging .323 in the ten games. Captain Leland, with an average of .488, was again the best hitter in college circles. Tufts fielded .961 to .925 for its opponents, made four times as many sacrifice hits and stole six times as many bases. While it was piling up its high batting average its own pitchers were holding the opposition to .206.

As has been its custom for so many years, Brown had a team that stood well up among the leaders. Though it suffered heavily when it lost DeVitalis, its star pitcher, to the national cause, it is a grave question whether it possessed the all around strength of either Tufts or Holy Cross. Amherst and Williams, usually good, were below the average, and none of the Maine colleges had teams that were any better than normal.

With Tufts and Holy Cross so sharply outranking the field, it is but natural that these two teams should furnish a large proportion of the material for an All-New England college team. The best pitchers of the year were undoubtedly Ryan of Holy Cross and O'Marra of Tufts, with DeVitalis of Brown and Palmer of Vermont not so very far behind. Ryan may have been the best of the lot in strictly defensive work, but O'Marra was as valuable an all around player as wore a uniform. Steady and heady in the box, he fielded his position well and batted for .333 in the seven games in which he played. Keefe, also of Tufts, would be a fitting battery mate for either Ryan or O'Marra. He fielded for .990, batted for .344, and allowed only five stolen bases in nine games. He was easily the best college catcher of the year. Second honors go to Spillane of Holy Cross.

Brown will have two men in the All-New England infield—Davidson at third and Murray at shortstop. Duggan of Holy Cross wins the second base position without much struggle, and King of Tufts, though not a heavy hitter, must be the choice for first base. In the outfield will be found Wigglesworth of Holy Cross, Leland of Tufts and Ormsby of Brown.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY, BLOOMINGTON, IND.

This lineup will give the All-New England team the maximum of offensive and defensive power. Every man in it is a steady, consistent fielder, and both infield and outfield are composed of long range hitters and fine base-runners. With either Ryan or O'Marra pitching and Keefe catching, it would be well-nigh unbeatable by any nine which could be recruited from the college ranks.

COLLEGE BASE BALL IN OHIO.

BY H. G. McDAVITT, CLEVELAND.

Ohio State University was credited with having the championship intercollegiate nine in Ohio last season. Ohio State defeated Wooster College, leader in the Ohio Conference with a record of six victories in eight games, 10—3. White, the Wooster pitcher who puzzled most of the Ohio Conference teams, was no mystery to Ohio State's keen batters. Ohio State also defeated Purdue, 9—0, and Oberlin, 11—0.

Scores of other Base Ball games played by Ohio college nines: Wooster 10, Case 1; Wooster 20, Case 4; Reserve 9, Oberlin 2; Reserve 1, Michigan Aggies 9; Hiram 3, Case 1; Miami 5, Earlham 0; Hiram 6, Reserve 0; Oberlin 8, Case 2; Reserve 12, Oberlin 11; University of Akron 14, Case 2; Reserve 12, Wooster 5; Case 16, Oberlin 10; Wooster 8, Akron 5; Reserve 12, Case 1.

INTERCOLLEGIATE BASE BALL IN WEST VIRGINIA.

BY H. A. STANSBURY, ATHLETIC DIRECTOR WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY.

Base Ball among the colleges of West Virginia, while of as high grade as usual in 1917, suffered severely from lack of interest among the followers of the teams. The declaration of a state of war with Germany, coming as it did right at the opening of the season, tended to distract the attention of the undergraduates as well as of alumni and other followers of teams. Few of the teams were weakened by enlistments, West Virginia University suffering more from this than any other nine when her entire outfield went to the officers' training camp in the middle of the season. So far as has been noted, these were the only men lost from any of the teams through the war.

As has been said, however, the play was up to the usual standard. West Virginia Wesleyan had a well balanced, veteran aggregation that through two clean-cut victories over West Virginia late in the season won a clear claim to the State championship. Wesleyan, in Reeder, Miller and Daniels in the field and Shriver on the pitchers' mound, offered four experienced and dependable players who were largely responsible for her success. West Virginia had good material, but the great interest in the early preparations for the war so distracted the attention of the entire undergraduate body that there was little incentive for the men on the team to play. Nevertheless the team looked good, winning two games from Marshall and two from Penn State, and coming up to her series with Wesleyan on an even footing with the Methodists. Wesleyan, however, presented a superior aggregation that won the game at Buckhannon by the score of 3—0, and on Decoration Day, at Morgantown, won the second game, 2—0. Marshall College had a very strong team and, having won the State championship in 1916, was counted upon to be a big factor in the race last year. West Virginia defeated her at Morgantown, 4—3, and at Huntington, 3—1, thus ending her aspirations, since she did not meet Wesleyan, due to a difference over eligibility rules. Bethany had a team that was up to her standard of the past few years, but she was eliminated by West Virginia in decisive fashion early in the season.

BASE BALL IN MINNESOTA.

By CHARLES JOHNSON.

The declaration of war, coming as it did when Base Ball teams all over the country were preparing for a banner season, wrought havoc with diamond schedules, especially high school, college and university teams in the Northwest. The universities and most of the small college teams canceled their schedules. The high schools in the State went through with their dates and, despite the loss of men, had one of the most successful seasons in the history of the game.

In Minneapolis, West High, by a grand finish, tied North for the city high school title. The season started off with East High getting away to a good lead, winning three out of the first four games. In the final series of games East went to pieces and North and West came to the front. North was leading into the stretch when a setback at the hands of West muddled up the race. And it was in just that condition when the season closed, these two schools being tied for the title with no play-off to decide the game.

High school Base Ball went strong in other sections of the State, but because of the fact that there was no league in Minnesota, there was no set Base Ball champions during the season.

Actuated by the patriotic spirit which swept the country as war was declared, most of the small colleges of the State called off their diamond games. After things returned to normal again, St. Thomas, St. Olaf, Carleton and St. John's colleges took up Base Ball again and staged a merry race for the college title. St. Olaf College of Northfield won leading honors by defeating St. Thomas College of Minneapolis in the championship game of the season. There was no Base Ball at the University of Minnesota outside of intra-mural games.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN CONFERENCE.

Immediately following the declaration of war last spring a vote was taken by the University of Denver and Colorado College, with the result that their spring athletic schedule was canceled.

Base Ball was also abandoned by the Colorado School of Mines and the University of Wyoming. This left but two schools to engage in spring activities—the University of Colorado and Colorado Agricultural College. These two schools participated in a combined field and track meet, also Base Ball tournament, at Boulder, the home of the University of Colorado. As it was really impossible to declare a championship, the University of Colorado retains this title from the season of 1916.

As time progressed it was apparent that all of the schools could have carried out their spring schedules, even though most of the schools adopted drill tactics in preparation for army service.

A wealth of material was on hand at all of the schools and it was expected the season of 1917 would be one of the best in the history of the Conference.

Collegiate Notes

Amherst (Mass.) College.—The bright spot of the season was the result of the Williams series, Amherst taking three out of four. Early in April the team lost six regulars through enlistment, but capable substitutes were found to bring the team up to par.

Belmont Abbey College, Belmont, N. C.—The surprise of the season was the comeback of pitcher McGillicuddy, who had been out of the game for two years. He had a no-hit and several one and two-hit games to his credit and led the team in batting with .425. The all-round playing of Captain Manley was also a feature.

Boston (Mass.) College.—Captain Gildea led in batting, with .318. The work of Hoefling at third base was sensational. Charles Fitzgerald played a sterling game at first. Fitzpatrick and Urban, the leading battery, were considered among the leaders in the East.

Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me.—Bowdoin won the championship of the State of Maine after an uphill fight. Two 'varsity pitchers enlisted and the captain entered Plattsburg. An Officers' Reserve Corps was started at Bowdoin, and everyone went into it. The players, however, practised for an hour at six in the morning and again after supper until darkness prevented.

Brown University, Providence, R. I.—Brown had the prospects of an unusually good team, but owing to the war, which took so many of its players, and cancellation, the games lost interest, but nevertheless a team was kept together in some form until the end of the year.

Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa.—Although, as in all other colleges, a great number of experienced players left to join the colors, the season was reasonably successful. Harry Zehfuss led his team well in all its contests and played his position as catcher in a way that did him credit. Doherty, after a season of 'starving at short, was elected captain. The following were awarded the 'varsity "C" for their work: Zehfuss, Doherty, Yeager, Gano, Withers, Miller, Kesner, Cosgrove, Gretzler, Osborne, Kennedy.

Carson-Newman College, Jefferson City, Tenn.—Special credit is due pitchers Wall and Wells, who, in combination with catcher Clapp, formed batteries that were hard to beat. Outfielders Acuff and Loy played almost errorless ball. The best game of the season was with Lincoln Memorial University, which, after winning seventeen straight games, was defeated.

Clemson Agricultural College, Clemson College, S. C.—Team was light but fast. Parker, Heron and McMillan played exceptional ball. Long played in hard luck in the box. Although able to get on base, the team as a whole could not always follow up their success and lost several important games by one run.

Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y.—Owing to cancellations on account of the war, only two games were played. Reid's hitting featured; Captain Glendenning, in left field was a consistent player; Reid in center field and Swett in right field were good fielders and hard hitters. Reid's home run in the Army game was said to be the longest hit that has ever been made at West Point. West and Leonard were the leading pitchers. R. A. Gardner was manager.

College of City of New York, New York City.—Three games were played, enlistments depleting the team. This season, however, the crack freshman team of last year will be the nucleus around which a representative team can be built.

Colorado School of Mines, Golden, Colo.—The two Conference games were very good, even though both were lost. The one with the Aggies went sixteen innings. Schneider, Dickinson, O'Neil and Heitzman were leading players.

Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa.—Team played excellent base ball all season. Had only one bad inning in the whole season, when Iowa State ran in six scores, making the only blot on an otherwise clean record. The veteran battery, Byerly and Hughes, closed their athletic careers here. Turner, captain and shortstop, was a fine leader.

Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H.—Dr. A. J. Ranney, who was captain of the Dartmouth College base ball nine in 1890, has been selected as base ball coach at Dartmouth this spring. He will be assisted by Fletcher Low, a former Dartmouth player and now instructor of chemistry at the college, and F. M. Walker, the present basket ball coach.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY, SYRACUSE N. Y.

Davidson (N. C.) College.—As a whole the season was most successful. Many new men appeared in lineup. Leading players were: McMillan, Black, Johnson, Saunders and Hengsweld. The games with University of North Carolina and University of Georgia were the best of the season.

Delaware College, Newark, Del.—The University of Pennsylvania game was a hard fought pitchers' battle. Clancey pitched and Pierson caught.

Dubuque (Iowa) College and Seminary.—Director and Coach of Athletics John G. Chalmers writes: "By defeating Upper Iowa University, a team that lost only to us, we were given a tie with them for the Hawkeye Conference championship."

Eastern College, Manassas, Va.—Although shortened on account of cancellations, the best season since 1912 was experienced. Henry's backstopping was responsible for much of the team's success. The pitching staff, composed of Reid, Rhodes and Pohl, was well seasoned. The infelding of Hooe, Doyle, Honoker and Brennan was of an excellent caliber, Doyle being the sensation. Greaney, House and Dolan comprised the outfield.

Emory and Henry College, Emory, Va.—The team as a whole did excellent hitting, six of the first nine men batting over .300. A total of 101 runs were made from 98 hits.

Georgetown (Ky.) College.—Pitcher Sullivan won the captaincy by his great work in the box. The two games with Tennessee, champions of the South, were lost in the last inning on errors. Captain Anderson led in batting with .407.

Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.—Owing to the schedule being canceled on account of the war, Georgetown did not have much opportunity to display its talent. Among the stars on the team were Murray and Gene Finnegan, pitchers; Sullivan, the hard hitting outfielder; Whelan at first, Cody at third, and Maloney at shortstop.

Hiram (Ohio) College.—With the withdrawal of all but three men to the country's service, it was impossible to get a team. The work of Van Voorhis and Soller, the battery in all five games played, is especially to be commended. Soller has to his credit an average of thirteen strikeouts to a game. He was always ready to work, pitching at Reserve and Case on consecutive days, each bringing a victory.

James Millikin University, Decatur, Ill.—Team went along fine until middle of season, when the call to the colors took most of them. Collins batted .600; H. Long batted .500. Sherman, now in France, fielded 1,000 at first base.

Kalamazoo (Mich.) State Normal School.—Kalamazoo State won all its games with Michigan colleges, which gives it a record of not losing to any of these colleges since 1912. The game with the University of Michigan was canceled owing to the fact that they voted to discontinue base ball, for the spring at least. The most important game was the one with M.A.C., and, as usual, the Normalites won an easy victory by a 5 to 3 score.

Kirksville (Mo.) State Normal School.—Team won the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association base ball championship in 1917, as they had done in 1916.

Lehigh University, South Bethlehem, Pa.—Victories were scored against many of the leading collegiate nines of the East, such as Pittsburgh, Holy Cross and Pennsylvania, and with the closing of the season the team batting average was .312 and a fielding average of .962, while sixteen victories were scored against only six defeats, for a total of 183 runs to opponents' 72. All three games were won from Lafayette College, the Brown and White's greatest rival. The work of Lees, Hurley, Johnson, Maginnes and Captain Twombly featured throughout the year. Maginnes led in batting, according to scorer Morris Lawrence's carefully compiled statistics.

Leland Stanford Jr. University, Stanford University, Cal.—The preliminary season leading up to the five-series championship series with the University of California was a trying one, as few veterans were back, and the team was constantly shifted in the effort to find a winning combination. Coach Russell T. Wilson, formerly of Whit-tier, and Captain A. S. Hayes devoted many hours of hard work to the nine. The team that met California appeared to be the best that could be developed and, out-side of the second game, gave an excellent account of themselves.

Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tenn.—The team in general was unusually strong. Bolden and Baring, pitchers, each lost but one game; West was a good catcher; Bailey, Rainwater, Brodyen and Winters featured in hitting.

TRINITY COLLEGE, SIOUX CITY, IOWA.

Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill.—Prospects seemed unusually bright for a good team until the war's interruption. Leading players were Captain Mustam; Graham, first base; Jackson, second base, and Reenor, catcher.

Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La.—The star infield that had been built in 1916 was broken up, when Baird went to the Giants and Waller returned to Washington and Lee. Tate, the third man, went to West Point about the middle of May. Wilkinson was the ranking pitcher, having speed, control and fielding ability. Herbert developed into a dependable backstop. Hamilton was the best of the outfielders. Prospects for 1918 are good.

Manhattan College, New York City.—The team picked by the coach, "Zack" Erhard, was as follows: Pitchers, J. Houlihan, Burns, McMahon; catcher, Mullaney; first base, G. Houlihan, Lynch; second base, Bob Burns; third base, M. Byrne; shortstop, LeClaire; left field, Galligher; center field, Hirschman; right field, Ryan and Brennan.

Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va.—Ohio State, Notre Dame and Michigan Aggies were some of the teams on the schedule, close scores marking the contests. The principal games were against West Virginia University, Marshall losing both by 5-4 and 5-2. Shannon was selected as an All-State catcher. Dearien, first base, and Davidson, pitcher, got tryouts with Detroit.

Maryville (Tenn.) College.—War was responsible for a cut in schedule, but of eleven games played Maryville won five. Especially gratifying was the 5-4, eleven inning victory over University of Tennessee, their old rival. Scruggs was never in a hole during the entire contest. He also held the Chattanooga Southern League team to four hits and no runs for the seven innings he pitched. Kirkpatrick, a sub, played his first 'varsity game in the Tennessee contest, and was a feature.

Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Mich.—The season of 1917 was strictly a war season. Some of the best men enlisted when the war broke out and squad was limited, only twelve men being available who were eligible. Six won and five lost, under the circumstances, was very satisfactory.

Milwaukee (Wis.) State Normal School.—A very short schedule was played, many of the scheduled games being called off because of the war.

Morningside College, Sioux City, Iowa.—The team played eight games and won all of them. Wenig, pitcher; Eiffert, catcher; Johnson, third base, and Northup, outfield, were leading players. The team batting average was .305.

Mt. Angel College, St. Benedict, Ore.—Coach O'Rourke's efforts resulted in an excellent team last season. On the mound Kasberger and Sohler were invincible, while Chapel, behind the bat, supported them admirably. Only one game was lost, a fourteen inning contest with the fast Chemawa Indians, who had been defeated previously. A victory over Multnomah Athletic Club was a surprise to the Portlanders.

Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md.—No game created more enthusiasm than the 13-4 victory over Gettysburg, an oldtime rival. The batting of Sadler and Roach contributed greatly. Gleason, in the points; Corbett, behind the bat; Captain McMorris, Eaker, Carney and Rice were especially prominent in the various contests. "Mickey" Day of Syracuse University was coach.

Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio.—Team went well all season. Frost, first baseman, batted .400. In game with Capitol University, at Columbus, with the score 0-0, fourteen innings, Jackson lifted the ball for a home run over Capitol's gymnasium.

New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, N. M.—Team was made up of new men with exception of Captain Graham, whose work was exceptionally good. Jackson, first baseman, featured with four home runs, seven two-base hits and average of .389. The work of three pitchers, Lee, Jeffrey and McGregor, was fine.

New York University, New York City.—Four games—with Williams, Hamilton, Stevens and Lafayette, the latter three being defeated—were played before war canceled the schedule. The team gave evidences of becoming strong hitters. Leading players were Tetelman, Weinheimer, Daley and Baker.

Niagara University, Niagara Falls, N. Y.—Some strong teams were on the schedule last season. Notre Dame was defeated once and won once; Michigan Aggies won a close 4-3 game; Fordham, Rutgers, Seton Hall and University of Buffalo all lost to Niagara. The last game was with Holy Cross, the Worcester college administering a shutout, 6-0.

UNIVERSITY OF BUFFALO, BUFFALO, N. Y.

North Carolina State College, West Raleigh, N. C.—Although the team lost seven out of thirteen games, some were by close scores and against strong opponents, including Yale University and the Washington American Leaguers. Outfielder W. H. Miller batted .500; third baseman Wharton hit for .340. Baker was leading pitcher.

Oberlin (Ohio) College.—The season was shot to pieces and interest lost on account of military drill. Team had very little time to practice and lost several good men, who enlisted.

Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.—Ohio State won its first Western Conference base ball championship in 1917. The team was defeated but once, that time by Indiana. In addition to winning all but one "Big Nine" game all the other games played were won. The game to decide the championship of the Western Conference was played with Indiana at Neil Park, home of the Columbus American Association team, and was a benefit for the French Orphans' Fund. Ohio State won the game, 7 to 2, before a large crowd. Captain Wayne B. Wright was the star of the team, his pitching practically carrying the Buckeyes to the championship. Wright did not lose a game during the season. Other stars of the team were catchers Jones, who left the team to join the army before the end of the season, and Blake, who took his place; Norton, who led the team in batting and run making; "Chic" Harley, Ohio State's All-America foot ball player, who led the base-runners and batted over .400, and third baseman Skelley, who is captain for 1918. Only Skelley, Friedman, Blake and Harley did not graduate last spring.

Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, Stillwater, Okla.—Randle Perdue, 1917 manager of base ball, writes: "The war situation crippled base ball in the 1917 season. Twenty games were scheduled, most of them with Missouri Valley and Southwestern Conference teams. Only three listed games were played, two with Missouri and one with the Chilocco Indians. Altogether eight games were played, five being exhibition contests hurriedly arranged. On May 1, three weeks before the regular season should have closed, A. & M. was forced to discontinue base ball, even the exhibition games, because practically every player of the squad was accepted for the officers' training camps. Of eighty-two men commissioned in the army this past summer, twenty-four were veteran 'varsity athletes.'"

Penn State College, State College, Pa.—The war caused the cancellation of a number of games, among which were those scheduled with West Point, Leland Stanford and Dartmouth. Robinson at first, Blyth at third, Wheeling's catching and the pitching of Howard and Johnson featured.

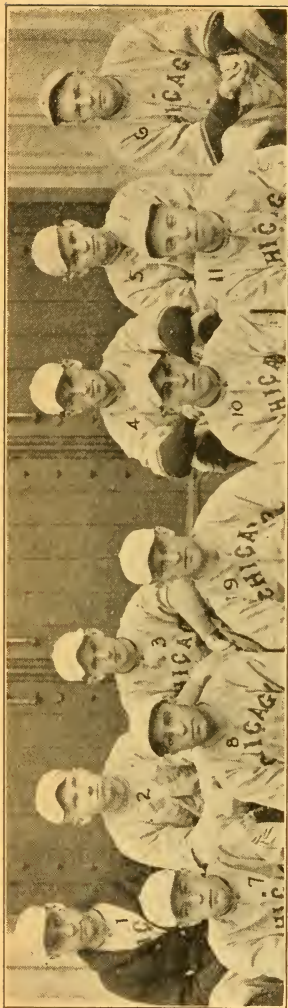

Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.—Eleven games were played. Most of the games were lost by close scores. Chicago was defeated and also defeated Purdue; Indiana also won and lost a game, as did Northwestern. Illinois won, 1—0; Ohio State, 9—0, and Notre Dame, 9—5.

Rhode Island State College, Kingston, R. I.—After a poor start the team strengthened suddenly and won four of the last five games. Hudson and Woods, with Lawrence catching, made a battery hard to beat. Greenhalgh, Forgan, Lynch and Lawrence starred with the bat.

Rice Institute, Houston, Tex.—The record: won 10, lost 5, tied 1. Ranked second in Texas Intercollegiate A. A. Potts and Jackson led in hitting; Heywood led the outfielders, also in stolen bases; Hodges led infielders and in one game of nine innings had twenty-one putouts at first base. Butler (in the last Baylor game of fourteen innings) for twelve innings never gave a hit and in fourteen innings only allowed two hits, a record in Texas. In the same game Jackson, Rice centerfielder, threw a man out at first base, on what appeared to be a safe hit. Also tied with A. & M. of Texas for highest score made in any game, scoring seventeen times in Daniel Baker game.

Rock Hill College, Ellicott City, Md.—The team at all times gave a good account of itself, close fielding being a feature. In this department, Parrott, Collins and Pentony were the chief performers. Godin, Brennan and Parrott were steady batters. Copley, a southpaw, became a dependable twirler and Perry, a right hander, not only pitched well but used the stick to good advantage.

Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J.—The base ball season was shortened because of the large number of the squad entering different branches of national service. Rutgers won four and lost four. Twenty games in all had been scheduled by Manager Troll. Captain Waterfield pitched the majority of the contests.

UNIVERSITY OF IOWA, IOWA CITY, IOWA.

St. Martin's College, Lacey, Wash.—In the last six years of base ball, St. Martin's has been victorious in forty-six games, losing only twelve. The two big games of the season were those with Great Falls of the Northwest League and the Olympia Senators. In the last named neither side was able to score until the ninth, when Toner of St. Martin's stole home with the winning run. Land, Kuchera, Toner and Cochrane were the leading batters and all around players.

St. Mary's (Kans.) College.—The season was remarkable in the development of new pitchers. Flock and McGlinchy, without former experience, proved puzzles to most of the batters. The veteran catchers, Dewitt and Dowling, were largely responsible for this development.

St. Paul's College, Covington, La.—Only two players were left over from previous year, LeBlanc and Landy. The all around playing of these two and the good hitting of Clonine made the team fast. The work of Barfield at first and A. Dupius at third was also remarkable.

Seton Hall College, South Orange, N. J.—Seton Hall's record was 9 won and 5 lost. McMahon's pitching was the feature of the team's work, defeating Princeton with four scattered hits, Tufts with seven. Sullivan was the leading hitter. Igoe and Gallagher were the leading fielders. Notable victories were those over Brown, Boston, Fordham and Niagara. Dave Driscoll is coach.

Southwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville, Tenn.—Although winning but six out of fourteen games the improvement as the season advanced was very noticeable and with a few more contests a decided improvement would have resulted. The entire club had that loyal, fighting spirit which goes to make a winning team.

Springfield (Mass.) College.—Like most other teams, the team was broken up by players departing for service every week, yet good ball was played. The double-header with Brown, on Patriots' Day, were both very good exhibitions. The Middlebury game was about the tightest played, the lone run being made when Whalen stole home. "Chief" Owl, who could fill any position; Tichenor at second, and Link, at short, featured the season's playing.

Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, Pa.—"Bullet Joe" Kleskie featured on the pitching staff. "Pat" Emerick led the club with the stick. Burleigh Peters, the veteran "spitballer," was steady. Bowser, Emerick and Shannon composed the fielding staff and they are all ten second men.

Swarthmore (Pa.) College.—The University of Pennsylvania was the only team able to win from Swarthmore in a rather short but successful season. The Pennsylvania-Swarthmore series usually provides plenty of excitement for both of the Quaker schools, but last year it was all U. of P. Ogden and Curtis did the battery work in most of the games, the former registering a no-hit victory over Dickinson at Carlisle.

Syracuse (N. Y.) University.—Syracuse only played three games of a schedule of twenty-nine. War was declared while the team was in Washington on a Southern trip and they were called home and disbanded by the Athletic Board.

Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, College Station, Tex.—Team had good prospects but upon declaration of war practice was practically abandoned and military drill given undivided attention. The team played good ball at times, but on the season's showing was a disappointment. Rigney, shortstop; Ellis, catcher, and Powers, captain and center fielder, were the most valuable men.

Throop College, Pasadena, Cal.—Throop finished second in Southern California Conference. Credit for winning games falls to Lukens, our pitcher, who fanned on an average of nine men in the four games played. At the beginning of the last half of the ninth inning of the Redlands game, Redlands was leading, 2 to 1. With two down, three and two on the batter, and nobody on, Throop rallied and won the game, 3 to 2.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.—The time of the team was pretty constantly employed by the intensive military training at college, and practice could not be held regularly. Captain Murray was the individual star. In the game with Union he made a home run and two three-base hits.

Tufts College, Medford, Mass.—Tufts schedule was somewhat disrupted by the declaration of war and further by weather conditions, bringing the total number of games played down to ten. In these ten games, of which eight were won, the team batted for .323 and fielded for .361. The work of Leland, O'Mara, Ford and Keefe, in all departments of the game, was particularly commendable, along with the steady, consistent playing of the rest of the club.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY, CAL.

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO, BOULDER, COLO.

Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.—Coach Tamsett was obliged to develop two nines during the season, the outbreak of the war taking away those comprising what was to have been the 'varsity team. The pitching of Homer Goff, who was the real find of the season; the fast work of Collins at shortstop, and May's heavy hitting featured the playing of the team.

United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.—As in the case with most other colleges the Army canceled the schedule soon after the season started. As the team was composed for the most part of veterans it whipped into shape immediately and played strong ball from the very start. Gerhardt, McNeill, Oliphant and Sarka topped one of the strongest teams ever produced at the Point. Base ball is to be resumed in 1918 and although many of the 1917 team were lost by graduation the new class developed much promising material.

University of Arizona, Tucson, Ariz.—Outside the professional teams at Ray and Hayden the University was the best team in the State and easily won from its old-time rival, New Mexico A. and M. College. W. McGowan, pitcher; W. Hallmark, catcher, and J. Mauer, infielder, were leading players.

University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, Ark.—After playing a few games, the balance of the schedule was canceled owing to the outbreak of the war and the fact that a great many students of the University left college to enter training camps and go into agricultural service. Benton, Davidson, Sands, Love, Hardin and McLachlin were leading players.

University of Buffalo, Buffalo, N. Y.—University of Buffalo had a very good team, but only had the opportunity of playing two games, as all the other games scheduled were canceled, owing to the declaration of war. The work of Captain Burns at first, Ervin as catcher, Ianne at short, Humphrey and Thill, pitchers, stood out prominently. Foster K. Brown was manager.

University of California, Berkeley, Cal.—The best team that has ever represented the university was the general verdict. Dimmock, a left hander, pitched a no-hit-no-run game. Team hitting average was very high.

University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa.—The Iowa team in practice games indicated fine all around strength. With the beginning of the schedule a weakness in hitting developed. It took the rest of the season to overcome this, but in the last two or three games was going along in fine shape. Gillis, the one dependable pitcher, was hurt and his place could not be filled. Brown, left fielder, developed into about the best hitter in the Conference.

University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky.—The team played seven games and won six. The schedule was not finished on account of so many members of the team going to training camps. McClellan won all his games but one.

University of Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Ind.—Eleven won and four lost was the 1917 record. Meyers, first base; Allison, catcher; Kline, captain and third base; Wolf, shortstop; Edgren, pitcher, and Keenan, center fielder, were the leading players. Allison led the team in batting with an average of .416.

University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.—The 1917 season was a good one for Pitt. Under the efficient coaching of Walter Blair, former New York (American League) catcher, the team was only defeated three times in eighteen games. Two of the defeats came late in the season, when both star twirlers, Captain Langdon and Lou Kennedy were declared ineligible on account of participating in a game with an outside team. The team batted hard all season and the pitching, as a rule, was high class. The best game of the year was a 1-1, fifteen inning tie with Swarthmore.

University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va.—In the four games played—two with Amherst and one each with Lehigh and Carolina—Thurman hit over .500. Rixey (brother of Eppa Rixey of the Philadelphia Nationals) was the main pitcher. Prospects looked bright when season was canceled on account of war.

University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.—The team looked very promising when the intercollegiate schedule was called off by the war. Brown and Grasshorn, pitchers, showed up well on the training trip; Simpson, Brennan and Cramer also gave promise. Osmon Fox was captain. The greater part of the team is now in the United States Service.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME, NOTRE DAME, IND.

University of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio.—Hard hit by the war, yet finishing the season with the highest percentage of any Ohio Conference college team, was the enviable record of Wooster. Early in the season three valuable men, Captain Inman, catcher Manchester and outfielder Roderick, were lost to the training camp. A little later, pitcher Fullerton and outfielder Jones also left school. Each of these men was above the ordinary, and their loss was keenly felt. Nevertheless the schedule was carried out and resulted in winning the 1917 Ohio Conference title. The most important game of the year was played with Ohio State on Severance Field at Wooster. Ohio State won from Wooster's weakened team, but not without determined opposition on the part of Wooster.

Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa.—During the short time that the team played together the record was fairly good, but when military training was instituted the remainder of the schedule was canceled.

Villanova (Pa.) College.—Villanova opened the season with a rush, defeating Princeton, 11 to 0. Later both Ursinus and Albright fell before the Blue and White sluggers. These were followed by a six inning tie with Gettysburg. Mount St. Joseph and University of Pennsylvania both made Villanova bite the dust. Next, the Main Liners took the measure of their old rival when Fordham was defeated. In a pitchers' battle between Molyneaux and Swigler, University of Pennsylvania again brought Villanova to defeat. In the final game Mount St. Joseph was defeated, 4 to 0. Molyneaux, pitcher, was easily the star performer. He joined the St. Louis American League team at the close of the college season. McGuckin, McGeehan and McCullian were strong factors in every victory.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va.—The season of 1917 was one of splendid team work. Leading players of the season were Younger, second base; Lancaster, shortstop; Dean, first base; Gains, catcher; Harmon, right fielder, and Thomas, pitcher.

Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md.—The team had a successful season, especially among the State colleges. Pitcher Diffendal's work was very consistent; Wingate and Thomas covered the outfield well; Miles and Langrall shone in the infield, the latter leading the batters with the high average .588.

West Virginia University, Morgantown, W. Va.—West Virginia, in common with other colleges in this section, had a very uninteresting season and although the State championship was definitely decided by Wesleyan winning it, the season, from a standpoint of good base ball, was an excellent one. The team was a good one on paper but failed to come up to expectations in the series with Pittsburgh and Wesleyan, though against Marshall and Penn State the men played brilliantly. Rodgers was the leading player, though June and Fidler also performed well.

Wheaton (Ill.) College.—Team started practising but disbanded one week before first game on account of military drill being taken up. Schedule then canceled.

William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo.—In the game against Tarkio, McKinney struck out twenty-five men; "Eagle Eye" Jake Beckley, former major leaguer, umpired. In the game against Maryville Normal, later in the season, he struck out twenty-three in a no-hit-no-run game. Finney, catcher, and Billings, third base, were prominent.

Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.—At the outset of the season the prospects for an unusually successful team were bright, but owing to the call to the colors the personnel of the regular lineup was almost entirely changed before the season was well started. Nevertheless the team was well up to the standard of past years and played a very creditable brand of ball, due to Coach Ira Thomas' excellent teaching. The work of Captain-elect Kingsley, Clark, Dunn, Foster, Radley and Young is to be commended especially.

Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C.—Wofford started the season well, winning the first four games, but after a disastrous trip the team never was up to the standard of what it was at the opening of the season, except in one or two games. Lawton, Brunson, Cultren, Osbourne, Vaughan and Bozeman all played a prominent part.

Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute.—The Trinity game was the feature game and was won in the eleventh inning by consistent hitting. Best batters were McCaffrey, Smith, Wheeler, Titcomb and Haycock. Tomblew was the leading pitcher.

Scholastic Notes

Bailey Military Institute, Greenwood, S. C.—Bailey claims the prep school championship of South Carolina. Granger and Wood divided pitching honors, while the work of Leaman at second, Anderson at short and Tice at third was unbeatable. Edwards' catching and Captain Brabham's outfielding, along with that of Smith, Weisberg and Williams, was noteworthy.

Bethlehem (Pa.) Preparatory School.—Bethlehem Prep won ten and lost three games last season. McHugh held Hill School to one hit in a 2-1 victory, and although holding Mercersburg to one hit also, the latter won, 1-0.

Blair Academy, Blairstown, N. J.—The main players were Marsden, pitcher; Trotter, shortstop, and Winner, catcher. The team claims the prep school championship of New Jersey.

Bordentown (N. J.) Military Institute.—Some of the 1917 events were: broke Trenton High's run of eleven straight games; defeated Wenonah, Trenton High and Swarthmore Prep; Thomas made four home runs in four consecutive games; Cummings went through season without striking out; Jewell pitched nine straight victories.

Boys' High School, Brooklyn, N. Y.—Eight won and four lost was the good record of Boys' High. In the Brooklyn P.S.A.L. series finished second to Erasmus, Commercial being defeated in the last contest, 5-3, not securing a hit. Tedford and Feigin pitched well; Captain Spiers at short and Ratner at first also shone.

Camden (N. J.) High School.—Started out well, the strong Atlantic City High team being defeated, 6-0. With the beginning of the war several of the best men left. The team scored 70 runs to 51 for opponents.

Carteret Academy, Orange, N. J.—With only one veteran from the previous season the team fared badly at the start but finished strongly. Captain Eaton starred in the outfield and at the bat. As a whole the team hit well. Meeker of Williams coached the team for the fourth season.

Central High School, Syracuse, N. Y.—The fielding of Goodale, Barry, Whelan and Simons was noticeable. The first Central-Technical game was a fine exhibition of airtight pitching by McOwen and splendid support by the whole team.

Central High School, Washington, D. C.—Central won the District interscholastic championship. A number of the men were picked by the newspapers for the District All-High team. Macdonald, Molster, Schafer, Gottlieb and Daly were especially prominent. The game with Episcopal High was a close affair, 2-1, Gottlieb for Central and Hodgson for Episcopal allowing only four hits each.

Cheltenham High School, Elkins Park, Pa.—When Pitcher Thorpe enlisted, Leonard Roth, an unknown sophomore, came forward and won nearly every game. His work was excellent. Waldis and Schlert were also stars.

Commercial High School, Brooklyn, N. Y.—Only one veteran was left for the 1917 team, Jim McCormack. Overconfidence was a failing of the team, however, and to this must be attributed some of the defeats. "Dutch" Hageman was a star on the mound and, what is unusual for a twirler, as a batter also, playing the outfield when not otherwise engaged.

Concordia Preparatory School, Bronxville, N. Y.—After winning seven out of the first eight games, team took a slump and lost four game in succession, but finished the season with a total of twelve victories and five defeats.

Cushing Academy, Ashburnham, Mass.—Could not consider last season a successful one. Lack of good material.

De Witt Clinton High School, New York City.—Tied for first place with High School of Commerce but was beaten in the last game by that school, 2-1. Blair's hitting throughout the season was the best of the school league. Gouldowski and DeStefano also starred for the team.

English High School, Boston, Mass.—English High had a splendid record last season, its opponents including leading prep schools of New England. The battery work of Kroog and Farrell; the batting of Bridges, Macchia, Morton and Woods, and the fielding of Barry, Aronson and Jewett were of high caliber.

Erasmus Hall High School, Brooklyn, N. Y.—The following were picked to represent Erasmus on the All-Scholastic first and second teams: First team—MacPhee, captain and shortstop; Blum, pitcher; Schlenger, second base; Goebel, center field; Carrao, left field. Second team—Barnes, first base; Barasch, catcher.

Fairmont (W. Va.) High School.—Only one game lost out of seven was last season's record. Turkovich was a big factor in winning. Mills at short and Brown at second also gave a good account of themselves.

Frankford (Pa.) High School.—The team made a fairly good showing in the Inter-scholastic League. Barfoot, captain and catcher, was the star. Newhouse, Grimm, Wagner, Terry and Heileman also played steady games. The team was crippled by the call to farm work in the latter part of the season.

Frederick (Md.) High School.—The season of 1917 was the best Frederick High School ever had. They played some of the leading prep schools in the State. Harty, Rogers, Whilide and Fleischman hit over .300.

Friends School, Baltimore, Md.—Tied with Dunham's for prep school championship of Baltimore. Team was faithful in practice and hence the good result. The leading players were A. Lowe, Dorsey, Owings and Norris. Friends School beat Gilman's in a close game for the first time in many years. Credit for this victory is due to our ever-reliable coach, Louis E. Lamborn, who is now in the Army.

Hill School, Pottstown, Pa.—Although Hill did not have a particularly successful season, still they won seven, tied one and lost five, and won their big game with Hotchkiss. Berkman, Melvaine and Captain Shevlin played well, as did Dale, until he joined the colors.

Indiana (Pa.) State Normal School.—Pitcher Buhrie did not lose a game during the season. Normal had a splendid hitting and a good fielding team. Of the 1917 squad, nearly every man has answered his country's call. But one man out of the entire squad entered Normal in September. J. E. Smith is athletic manager.

Kingsley School, Essex Fells, N. J.—Kingsley got off to a poor start but developed fast after losing the first four games. An almost unbroken string of victories followed, the season ending with a ten-inning conquest of their Montclair Academy rivals.

Lafayette High School, Buffalo, N. Y.—Team started well, but more serious pursuits of the Army, factories and farm labor took the first-string men. Captain Chapin was leading outfielder and batter; Delonge won all his games; Kelley was best in fielding and as a clean-up man; Sundberg led in base-running.

Mackenzie School, Monroe, N. Y.—Mackenzie outhit every team it played and finished with a batting average of .322. Sauvage, Fordyce, Cleaver and Lynch were the leading factors in team's success.

Mansfield (Pa.) State Normal School.—Mansfield's team was one of the strongest in recent years. Gazella, pitcher and captain, was the best hitter and all around man. The team hit and fielded exceptionally. Kichline proved his ability as a coach.

Medford (Mass.) High School.—Feature of season was winning pennant in Suburban League series without losing a game. The team also defeated Cambridge Latin in a post-season game for the State championship. The battery was Swensen, pitcher, and Sanford, catcher, the best in schoolboy ranks in recent years.

Media (Pa.) High School.—Thirteen games played and won is Media's record. Claim championship of Delaware, Chester and Montgomery counties. During the last two seasons only one game has been lost. Coach Segal claims that Agnew is the best pitcher of scholastic rank around Philadelphia. Black managed to hit safely in almost every game. Agnew also featured with the bat.

Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy.—Eleven games won and two lost was season's record. The lineup: Mahaffey, center field; Eberley, second base; Howard, left field; Steger, shortstop; Monroe, first base; Gorman, right field; Mulvey, third base; Crossman, catcher; Newhard, pitcher; Gibson, substitute pitcher; Johnson, outfielder and first base; Isenburg, utility.

Morris High School, New York City.—Despite several reversals of form, the team won ten of its sixteen games. Krassner for two years has been selected as All-Scholastic shortstop. Nelson led in batting, although he only played in nine games; McIntyre and I. Krassner led those who played in most of the games. Mulligan was the pitching find of the season.

Moses Brown School, Providence, R. I.—Only one defeat out of ten games. Fox pitched great ball with the aid of Dunn's splendid support. Wheeler had a good eye on the ball, also Binny, Allen, Wood, Fox, Seavor and Chick kept up their good batting average.

Newton High School, Newtonville, Mass.—Lost only four games, three of which were to Cambridge Latin. Defeated Medford, State champion. Eaton, at first, made only one error during the whole season; Garrity, third baseman, led in batting, with .356. Captain Turner was valuable as catcher and batted .301. Sawyer and Systrom were fine pitchers.

North High School, Syracuse, N. Y.—North High won the Syracuse championship and the Harvard Cup. Captain Barry and Naumann led in batting. Crowley and Everingham pitched good ball. The following received their "N": Barry, Naumann, Smith, John, Reinbar, Greib, Crowley, Everingham, Fitzpatrick, Fix, Sauter and Manager Wynkoop.

Palmyra (N. J.) High School.—Although weakened by graduation, the work for the year was very good. Durgin batted .322. Young, Bacon and Fried also featured.

Peddie Institute, Hightstown, N. J.—Started off with good prospects, Hill School being defeated in first game, but subsequently pitchers fell off, which, together with necessary changes in lineup, caused a slump. Jeffries, Carmack and Molinet were stellar players. E. A. Rogers, Princeton '13, is coach.

Penn Charter School, Philadelphia, Pa.—Despite the absence of several of the best men for extended periods and especially the enlistment of Dave Smith, who joined the navy, Penn Charter did very well to tie in the Interacademic League. Sitley's batting and Flemming's pitching were outstanding features of the team's work.

Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N. H.—The team had a very successful season, winning all of its games. The annual contest with Andover was not played, owing to Andover's adoption of military training. Putman at short and O'Doherty at third, were the leading men at bat. Captain McNamara, in center, was a consistent player.

Pomfret (Conn.) School.—The season of 1917 may be considered very satisfactory, since of thirteen games played the team won seven, including the Taft game at Watertown, and tied one. The all-around work of Captain Depew deserves especial mention.

Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) High School.—The team's followers were especially pleased with the showing last season and claimed for their representatives the championship of the Hudson Valley between New York and Albany. Pitcher Robinson had an average of thirteen strikeouts per game. The Delahoyd brothers were very prominent.

Rindge Technical School, Cambridge, Mass.—Close games were a feature of the schedule. Among the victories was one over Medford, 2-1, and the strong Exeter Academy team was held to 5-0. Quigley, Bourguignon, Mulry, Burgess, Barrett, Johnson, Mahoney, Molan and Metivier comprised the lineup.

St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, Pa.—Four straight defeats did not cause the team to lose confidence, as ten straight victories in succession showed, only one more defeat being encountered. University of Pennsylvania Freshmen, LaSalle and Pennsylvania Military Academy were victims, Coach Kennedy's boys also annexing the Catholic school championship of Philadelphia and vicinity.

St. Paul's School, Garden City, N. Y.—The best team to represent St. Paul's since 1910. Catcher Winegar had the highest batting average. Dickerson, in the New York Agricultural School game, struck out twenty-three men.

Shippensburg (Pa.) State Normal School.—Wink and Cocklin, by their batting, and Lambeson, on the mound, played a large role in running up a score of 67 points against opponents' 35. Grove, who played his first season, was one of the strongest men on the team.

Stuyvesant High School, New York City.—Won nine, lost five. Leading players were Maher, Hartman, Smith and Goeller. Team was the most successful that has represented Stuyvesant in a number of years. The best contest of the schedule was the Commerce game, won by Stuyvesant, 4-3, in last inning.

Tome School, Port Deposit, Md.—Tome had another successful season, winning ten and losing three games. Baker's batting was the feature, his average being .491 for thirteen games. The work of Vannort at short and Simpson in center was noteworthy. The big annual game with Lawrenceville was marred by a very strong wind, Tome losing, 11-15. Vannort of Tome made two home runs, a three-base hit and a single in this game.

Trenton (N. J.) High School.—Best team in years. Old rivals—State Schools—defeated twice. Watson, shortstop, best hitter; Kearns best scholastic first baseman in this section.

Vineland (N. J.) High School.—Although Vineland lost the championship of Cumberland County, the season was fairly successful, with nine won and four lost, with the handicap of only one pitcher. Gove, second base, and Bozarth, first base, were the leading players.

Waltham (Mass.) High School.—The coach was handicapped by a lack of veteran material and because of this the team did not hit its stride until midseason. Barnes, who pitched most of the games, led in batting, with an average of .365.

Washington (Pa.) High School.—The team ranked with the best preparatory teams in Western Pennsylvania. Owing to the war and graduation, several good men were lost to the team. Coach Beeler had a green team but worked wonders, and a championship is expected this season.

Westfield (N. J.) High School.—Starting off with an entirely new team and just getting started when enlistments necessitated a readjustment, Westfield found much solace by defeating North Plainfield and making Plainfield go eleven innings.

Wheeling (W. Va.) High School.—Heavy hitting was the big factor in the season's contests, in addition to the battery work of Bullard and Plummer, who were rated as one of the most effective batteries in West Virginia interscholastic circles. The work of Cotton, Wood, Stubbs, Gray and Young was consistently good.

White Plains (N. Y.) High School.—Three men were notably prominent in the team's games and enabled White Plains to finish second in the Westchester County League. Hoffman, a left-hander, pitched eleven games, and in the Yonkers 6—6 contest remained in the box for the whole sixteen innings, allowing but nine hits. He also pitched a one-hit game. Clark, who was the peer of the county shortstops, left for Annapolis on June 1 and his departure undoubtedly cost the championship. Rogers, at first, was a particularly finished performer. Clarke, DeNike and Harris joined the colors.

Williamson School, Williamson School, Pa.—Although winning but three of the games played, the team was not disheartened but expects better results this season. Most of the defeats were by close scores. Captain Mullen led in batting and fielding; other members were: Heltman and Murphy, the battery; Barnes, Small, Faye, Macauley and Flitskee; H. R. Moore, manager.

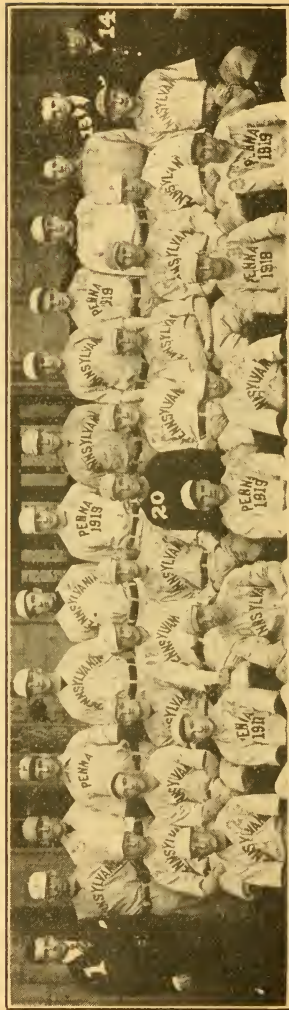

Woodberry Forest (Va.) School.—The success of the team was due mostly to Mr. Powell's coaching. Although beaten by Episcopal High School in midseason, the final game told a different tale and was especially gratifying. Leak, Mercer and Scott played well.

Yonkers (N. Y.) High School.—Besides a sixteen-inning 6—6 tie with White Plains High School, Yonkers also had the satisfaction of defeating Mamaroneck High School, the latter team having gone undefeated for nearly two years. Brady, Jordan and Heep figured at the bat and in the field and Boland pitched giltedge ball.

Base Ball Lawyers

Base ball playing rules are like many laws—subject to various interpretations—and only the trained mind, combined with actual experience, can answer correctly the many vexing problems that arise in a game.

In Spalding's Athletic Library No. 75R Umpire Billy Evans expounds in a series of questions and answers many intricate rules that need explaining and which are the basis of numerous disputes and arguments. If you have this book you will be fortified to answer almost any question that arises in a game. No need to write to the Editor of the Guide or to your local paper and wait for an answer. This book will answer almost any question that arises.

Mr. Evans, in addition, contributes several chapters that will be of much value to the umpire in performing his duties.

Every resort where the fans congregate should have this book for quick reference.

What the press says of Umpire Evans' book:

"Billy Evans' book covers practically every dispute which may come up during the course of a game. He answers all sorts of queer and knotty questions. His book should rank with the best ever published on the subject of base ball."—New York Sun.

"As interesting reading as will be found in a day's journey."—Galveston News.

"Billy Evans, the well known American League umpire, who is just as adept with the pen as he is with the indicator, has written a book that will become a classic. The chapters are so readable that every follower of the game can peruse them with profit."—Salt Lake Telegram.

"Mr. Evans has analyzed intricate base ball plays in a way that no other judge has ever attempted. His book is a help to manager, player, fan and writer, and is a distinct tribute to his initiative."—Boston Journal.

"Mr. Evans discusses a large number of important technical points in a lucid manner, especially under the heading of 'Knotty Problems,' and presents an angle of the game of base ball in which every fan is interested."—New York Times.
